CAMILLE,

which will be placed upon the stage with entire new scenery, properties, &c., and supported by the most powerful and efficient cast of characters that has ever appeared in the same piece in the colonies of Australia.

This edition has been entirely re-written for Miss PROVOST; the language modified, altered, and pruned of all that could give offence to the most fastidious, having been played by her 239 times in the principal theatres of the United States of America, California, and the colony of Victoria, and pronounced by the universal press to be an impersonation in which she stands

WITHOUT A RIVAL

The BALLARAT (Victoria) TIMES says, "Her chaste, artistic, and at the same time highly impassioned acting carried all before it. But the Camille of Miss Provost was not the lady whom Alexander Dumas (the younger), in the conceit of his youth, sought to make a heroine of romance, after she had been utterly lost and degraded. No! the Camille of Miss Provost was a sensitive, great-souled woman, and in making her such the artiste diverged widely from the author's track; but the audience had the benefit of it."

PARTNERSHIP.—I have THIS DAY admitted Mr. WILLIAM MANSON as a partner, and the business for the future will be carried on under the firm of JOHN FRAZER and CO. 95, York-street, March 1st.
JOHN FRAZER.

NOTICE.—I have THIS DAY leased my Stores and disposed of my business to WILLIAM ELLIS, late of the firm of ALFRED FAIRFAX and CO. The popularity of Mr. Ellis, while for the last twelve years in connection with one of the most extensive business houses in the colonies, precludes the necessity of doing more than calling the attention of my former constituents to this advertisement.
ALEXANDER CAMERON, 540, George-street. 1st March.

Referring to the above, I hereby request that all ACCOUNTS against me be presented for liquidation, on MONDAY, the 7th instant, and all debts due to me will be thankfully received. Address ALEXANDER CAMERON, 540, George-street. 1st March, 1859.

No. 59-19. Town Clerk's Office, Sydney, 4th March, 1859.
CLOSING OF DEVONSHIRE-STREET.—Notice is hereby given that the line of Devonshire-street, from George-street to the entrance to the Roman Catholic Burial Ground will be CLOSED to public traffic for ONE MONTH, from Monday, the 14th instant, in order to facilitate the carrying out of the works now in progress in that locality.

No. 59-17. Town Clerk's Office, Sydney, 4th March, 1859.
TO LIGHTERMEN.—TENDERS (Endorsed Tenders for Lightering Blue Metal) will be received at this Office until THURSDAY, the 10th instant, at 12 o'clock noon, from parties desirous of entering into a contract with the Municipal Council to convey blue stone metal from the Pennant Hills Wharf to the Corporation Wharf, at the foot of Lime-street. All information respecting the same may be obtained at this Office.
By order of the Improvement Committee,
CHAS. H. WOOLCOTT, Town Clerk.

No. 59-18. Town Clerk's Office, Sydney, 4th March, 1859.
TO CONTRACTORS.—TENDERS will be received at this Office until MONDAY, the 14th instant, at 12 o'clock noon, for the performance of the undermentioned works in accordance with specifications to be seen at the Office of the City Surveyor, viz.,
Metalling the Darlinghurst Road, between South Head Road and William-street.
Forming, ballasting, and metalling Kent-street between Bathurst and Liverpool streets.
Repair of William-street East.
The work tendered for to be endorsed on each tender.
The Council will not take into their consideration any tender which is not accompanied by a document signed by two responsible persons engaging to become surety to the extent named in the specification for the due fulfilment of the contract.
Printed forms of tender may be obtained at this Office.
CHARLES H. WOOLCOTT, Town Clerk.

COLE'S WHARF, MELBOURNE.—The undersigned is desirous to receive TENDERS for the leasing for Five, Seven, or Fourteen Years, or for the absolute purchase of COLE'S WHARF.
The Premises cover an area of one acre and seventeen perches; and are, perhaps, the best situated, and most commodious in the city for any business where large Storage Room is required, and water frontage is desirable.
The frontage to the Yarra Yarra is 132 feet, increased by a spacious dock, which will take in two vessels, and thus affords room for discharging four vessels at one time: and the goods can be placed from the ship on to the platform, and thence upon drays.
To add to these facilities the pipes are laid down, and the machinery is on the premises, for the purpose of erecting hydraulic cranes, &c., which will expedite the work of the wharf, and economise the labour.
The whole open space in the yard is laid with railways, and there is a hydraulic lift attached to one store, so that the facilities for moving and storing goods are great.
The Warehouse accommodation is enormous, and about 6500 tons of merchandise could be conveniently stored in the buildings and sheds adapted for the purpose. The premises are well situated for a manufactory, a foundry, timber yard, or for the carrying trade. Indeed the extensive water frontage, the immense storage room, and above all the contiguity to the Metropolitan Terminus of the Great Trunk Railway, will always render this property very valuable.
Every information and particulars can be ascertained on application, and tenders will be received up to the 21st March next.
GEORGE WARD COLE.
Cole's Wharf, Melbourne, 24th February.

TO STONE MASONS, Builders, and others.—The Trustees of the intended new Church of St. Matthias, Paddington, are willing to receive TENDERS for the Earth and Stone Work of the Eastern Portion of that Church. Plans and specifications may be seen at Mr. BELL'S, Stone House, Paddington, from 10 a.m. till 1 p.m., where tenders will be received until noon on TUESDAY, the 8th March next. The Trustees do not bind themselves to accept the lowest or any tender.

LATE FIRE in Botany Road.—Notice.—All Parties having Subscription Lists on behalf of Mr. EDWARD HICKSON are requested to send them in on or before WEDNESDAY next, 9th instant, to Mr. STRICKLAND, Hand and Heart, Botany Road. By order of the committee. VALENTINE DAVIS, secretary.

NOTICE.—All parties indebted to JOHN DAWSON and CO., Windsor, are requested to PAY in their ACCOUNTS at the Hawkesbury Stores, without delay.

MR. A. M. A'BECKETT, being about to leave the colony in a few days, requests that all debts due to him may be paid without delay.

NOTICE.—I hereby CAUTION the public not to trust my wife MARGARET HALORAN, as she left my house in Bourke-street, in my absence, and sold my furniture, and now refuses to live with me; I therefore Caution the public not to trust her or any one else on my account, as I will not be responsible for any debts they may contract. JOHN HALORAN, Duke-street, Woolloomooloo.

TO AGRICULTURISTS.—The undersigned, having been appointed agent in this colony for Messrs. R. Hornsby and Sons, manufacturers of agricultural machinery, Spittlegate Iron Works, Grantham, Lincolnshire,—is prepared to receive orders for any description of farming implements, steam-engines, &c. Illustrated catalogues can be obtained upon application to R. PEEL RAYMOND, Lyons-buildings, George-street, Sydney.
N.B.—A shipment of various articles expected immediately.

TO PUBLICANS.—Mr. H. VAUGHAN will attend as usual to his numerous friends in the public business in the city and district of Sydney; and as the documents for the annual licenses are all ready filled up, they will be forwarded to them for signature, which will prevent the necessity of their leaving their houses of business and losing much time. H. VAUGHAN, 136, King-street East.

PUBLICANS.—Mr. DELOHERY requests the names of your sureties. Your applications are ready, awaiting your pleasure.

PUBLICANS.—Your applications for Licenses must be lodged by the 29th of the month. C. DELOHERY.

The stores have been built and fitted up by the present proprietor with all the conveniences for carrying on a large business. On the wharf, and close to the water's edge, there is also erected a substantial woolshed, capable of containing 300 bales of wool; by being so situated very little labour is required in shipping the wool.
The proprietor's only reason for disposing of the above is, that he contemplates directing his attention to grazing pursuits.

LEA and PERRIN'S celebrated WORCESTERSHIRE SAUCE, pronounced by connoisseurs to be the only good Sauce, and applicable to every variety of dish. Extract of a letter from a medical gentleman at Madras, to his brother at Worcester, May, 1851. "Tell Lea and Perrin, that their sauce is highly esteemed in India, and is, in my opinion, the most palatable as well as the most wholesome sauce that is made."
EXTENSIVE FRAUDS.
L. and P. having discovered that several of the foreign markets have been supplied with spurious imitations of their Worcestershire Sauce, the labels of which closely resemble those of the genuine sauce, and in one or more instances with the names of L. and P. forged, they have deemed it their duty to caution the public, and to request purchasers to see that the names of Lea and Perrin are upon the wrapper, label, stopper, and bottle.
L. and P. further give notice that they will proceed against any one who may infringe upon their right, either by manufacturing or vending such imitations, and have instructed their correspondents in the various parts of the world to advise them of such infringements.

A VISIT TO THE WESTERN GOLD-FIELDS.

[FROM OUR SPECIAL REPORTER.]

No. XVII.

ANOTHER SPLENDID NUGGET FROM THE LOUISA.

On the 24th ultimo a German digger obtained a fine specimen from a claim within a few yards of the spot where Turner found his nugget, containing 197 ounces. The gold was, as in the previous instance, mixed with quartz, and has evidently been detached from the main reef, now worked by Dr. Street and his party. The specimen was, if possible, more beautiful than that procured by Turner; and, upon being broken up, produced gold to the value of £385, which was immediately purchased by the agent of the Bank of New South Wales. By some unaccountable fatality, the old company omitted to work the western side of the reef, which has already yielded within a few weeks two nuggets, worth nearly £800, and it is now anticipated that a large quantity of gold will be found in the same locality, as these repeated successes have attracted diggers to the lucky spot.

At the head of the flat mining operations have been attended with considerable success, and the diggings are now gradually extending to the higher parts of the plateau, particularly round the base of the hill from which most of the streams fall into the basin of the Louisa, where some good surfacing has recently been discovered, and is now being quietly worked. This district simply requires a few energetic men to push their researches to the southward and westward, where it is almost certain that their labours will be richly rewarded. Miners keep coming in to the Louisa from Burrendong and elsewhere, and within the last few weeks the population has been considerably augmented.

I am informed that Mr. Price, the Government surveyor, is now in the district, and will commence operations forthwith, with the intention of bringing the public lands into the market as speedily as possible. His first work will be to lay out the township of the Louisa, and his next to survey suburban lots, for which the surrounding flats and ridges are particularly adapted, and which will be most acceptable to the diggers.

Fortune has not been unmindful of the miners on the Upper Meroo, some few of whom are doing well in the neighbourhood of Richardson's Point. At the junction of Campbell's with Long Creek, Quinn and his party procured, on the 23rd ultimo, £50 worth of fine gold by means of puddling; and Dengate and Coy, at Pine Point, are equally fortunate; the yield from their ground is steady and remunerative, and promises to hold out for years.

Puddling is only in its infancy in this part of the Meroo and its tributaries; and when it is more extensively introduced, the yield from this quarter will be immensely increased; add to this an improved system of draining by means of simple machinery, worked by horse-power, and the richest portion of the district now unworked will become available.

The Devil's Hole Creek, once so famous for the immense auriferous deposits discovered on its banks and in the adjacent flats, has proved itself not yet bankrupt; and I would now prefer to have the gold remaining in it, to what has been taken from it. A digger procured a handsome nugget from his claim, near Tucker's, this week; it weighed between ten and eleven ounces of pure gold, and this was in addition to others of a smaller size. At Eaglehawk gully, a branch of the same creek recently opened, about thirty men are doing well; and at Ryan's Flat, near Long Creek, a rich lead, which was lost some five years since, has been recovered by a Mr. Arnold and his party, from Port Phillip. Here a large number of men are making good wages; some parties averaging from £7 to £10 a-week to the hand. Unfortunately, Arnold has shared the fate of all prospectors, and got the worst claim on the flat, and those who came last have fared best.

Notwithstanding all this, if you were to believe the Meroo diggers, they are in a state of destitution, and can hardly make out a subsistence. The man who gets ten ounces to-day will be horribly dissatisfied if he only gets half-an-ounce to-morrow, and will abandon the claim if it continues to be so niggardly in its yield. The ten ounces has done him a positive injury, and created an avaricious craving for gold that nothing will satisfy.

But the largest nugget of all falls to the share of the banks, who are exchanging, not their lead for gold, like Paul Clifford, but their paper, which thus obtains an extensive circulation. I expect a goodly proportion of our gold finds its way to the East Indies. It is much to be regretted that no means has been devised by which our revenue could be benefited by this exchange of paper for the precious metals, "of the substance for the shadow," of which English corporations at present receive the whole advantage. A colonial bank, with a colonial issue, based upon colonial securities, might help forward our railways, and enable us to retain a profit which we now permit to pass from our shores.

Merrendee is still the El Dorado of the diggers on the Meroo, and a few of them, attracted by the recent reports from Fairfield, are about to proceed to that district. I know of one man who sold a good house and a well stocked garden for twenty-five shillings, gave away his tools, and is off: although he was, as the diggers say, "getting a bit of gold," and had no cause to complain. This man, certainly, cannot have been one of the Rockhampton unfortunates, or experience would have taught him better. If, as is currently reported, from 1200 to 1500 men are congregated on that gold-field, he will either have to turn out and prospect new country, or find himself exhausted and travel worn in a worse position than the one he has abandoned. It is a fatality attending gold diggers—they are never satisfied. Fortune, like a will-o'-the-wisp, is ever looming in the distance, and leads them through toil and suffering to some bleak swamp or mountain side to encounter nothing but disappointment and vain regrets.

The geological formation at Fairfield differs from that on the Western Gold-fields; it is a granitic country, the strata is horizontal and smooth, and the gold travels. Here we are in a schistose country; the strata is vertical, full of irregularity and fissures, and the gold does not travel, but is usually found in patches at no great distance from the spot where it was disengaged from the quartz matrix. It is subject to the action of a different system in its distribution, so that the western digger has much to forget, and everything to learn, before he can pursue his avocation with success. When will the gold-miner learn the truth of the old adage—

S xum volubile non obducitur musco!

To no person does it come home closer than to himself—half the labour, half the suffering, and half the cost, inseparable from such a journey, expended in the rich district by which he is surrounded, would ensure a rich reward. There is gold at the heads of the Meroo, as yet unsought for, in the hundred streams issuing from the volcanic formations on the upper part of Campbell's Creek, and descending through the inferior quartziferous schists to the plains gold has been proved to exist in large quantities, and they require nothing but a little engineering ingenuity, so as to bring the water under control, to render them workable, when they would find employment for 2000 men; as it is, these beautiful and fertile valleys, pregnant with mineral treasures, are unpeopled and unknown to all save the Rob Roys who infest the district.

The magnates in the little Peddlingtons and Eatonswills scattered around are trying to get up the steam for an election; their stokers are bad, and the public in general appear to be very apathetic, and take little interest in the affair.

Blight in every abominable form is raging in the district; nearly every other person you meet either is, or has been suffering from this fearful scourge; in the towns scarlatina is prevalent, and many children have been its victims—notwithstanding the many thunderstorms, the season has been anything but healthy.

VICTORIA.

By the Wonga Wonga, we have papers from Melbourne to the 3rd instant.

Parliament not being in session, the only news of the least importance relates to the forthcoming proceedings of the Victorian Convention, for which great preparations have been made. Indicating the course likely to be pursued by that body, the Argus of the 2nd current remarks:—

Free selection, free pasturage for all cultivators over the whole colony, a reduced price, and deferred payments, are the leading principles of the Convention programme. Free selection within certain limits, free pasturage also within certain limits, and cash payments at the present upset price, are the corresponding propositions in the Ministerial policy. We believe that these are the points on which the most serious differences exist between the two land schemes now before the public. In other respects both parties are nearly agreed. We presume that the Convention does not object to town and suburban allotments being sold by auction as they now are, and as the Ministry propose that they shall continue to be. Mr. O'Shanassy proposes to fix a date for the termination of the present system of squatting. The Convention will not object to put an end to the present arrangements, nor does it seem desirous of fixing the date earlier than the close of the fourteen years from the issue of the Orders in Council. The extension of Municipal institutions, which forms so important a supplement to the Ministerial project, has not hitherto been discussed by the Convention, but we presume that the proposal is not likely to call forth its hostility. Both parties, too, agree in confining the advantages of free selection and free pasturage to the bona fide settler, and both also agree in keeping silence as to the means by which the bona fide settler may be distinguished.

There is indeed a deficiency in Mr. O'Shanassy's statement, which the Convention regards as highly objectionable. He gives no intimation of his views as to the mode of dealing with the waste lands after the present pastoral arrangements have expired. The Convention insists upon the annihilation of squatting, and the triumph of free grass. It appears to us that Mr. O'Shanassy's reticence is judicious. At present we have quite enough to do to settle the business that is before us. We may be content to let the future wait. The time when the question of the best mode of dealing with our unsold lands must be discussed is at least three years distant. In such a country as this it is seldom safe to legislate so far a-head. We may be satisfied if we can do properly the work that we have in hand, and we may wait to see the changes that three years will effect before we needlessly commit ourselves upon so remote a subject to any course of action. It is sufficient for the Convention that provision is made for the termination of the present system, and that it will have, at the fitting period, an opportunity of putting forward its views. It is even probable that the next Parliament will not be required to deal with this subject at all. Setting aside all chances of an earlier dissolution, its natural term of existence will be three years. The Convention, as we understand, does not object to the continuance of the present tenancy until 1862. We may expect, therefore, that an expiring Parliament will remit such a question to its successor, and that the opinion of the people will be directly taken upon a subject in which all have so deep an interest. In this view of the case, the difference between the Convention and Mr. O'Shanassy is considerably reduced. The Convention would not refuse the privilege of limited commonage which the Ministry offer, because it hopes to obtain hereafter a more extensive commonage. We cannot, in any circumstances, at once resume all the waste lands. Until it can effect this total resumption, the Convention would naturally accept, on its own principles, the proposed commonage, as an instalment of what it deems the rights of the public. We may, therefore, for the present, except from the matters in dispute the question of complete free pasturage as against partial free pasturage. Most important as that question is, it is not now before us. The subjects, then, that remain in dispute may easily be stated. The Convention requires that selection shall be the rule, and sale by auction the exception. The Ministry adhere to the auction system as a general principle, but take out of it the large exceptions of the special areas. The Convention insists that settlement shall precede and guide the surveys. The Ministry will sell no land that is unsurveyed. The Conventon thinks that the upset price should be reduced. The Ministry propose that its present amount shall be maintained. The Convention regards the system of deferred payments as of paramount importance. The Ministry refuse to deal upon any other terms than cash. Even here, too, the differences are not of equal importance. We do not find in the Convention journal any objection to the retention of the upset price. The question of selection before or after survey is likely to find a practical solution in the labours of the Surveyor-General. If the survey of the whole country is pushed on with sufficient energy, we shall soon have more land surveyed than we can expect to sell for many years. And thus the main points on which the two plans now before the public disagree, are those two on which there was an absence of unanimity in the Cabinet. One of his colleagues, as Mr. O'Shanassy stated, was in favour of selection over the entire colony; another expressed his approval of deferred payments, although he did not go beyond the suggestion that this system should be tried as an experiment in one area. The fact that these two points were those on which, after mature consideration, the Cabinet failed to agree, seems to confirm our conclusion, that free selection and deferred payments are the chief points on which a material and decided difference of opinion in the public mind exists.

If such be really the case, we have made a great step in advance. It is always of importance to know exactly the real question at issue. It is satisfactory to find that the only two distinct land schemes which are at present under public consideration approximate in so many points, and where they differ raise such precise questions for the decision of the country. It is true that one great question is, in this view of the case, postponed merely, and not settled. But the whole subject is too large to be dealt with otherwise than by taking such parts as come immediately before us. The dispute between the squatters and the Convention is not yet mature, and we cannot admit any needless complication in that part of the subject which is now ripe for discussion. The only way in which that subject can be fairly introduced, is in reference to the date at which the present tenure shall cease. We have always assumed that the natural date for such an event is at the expiration of fourteen years from the date of the Orders in Council. The Convention appears to be content with that arrangement. The Ministry have not yet intimated any opinion upon the subject. The squatters could hardly object to such a notice to quit. When the time comes for dealing upon new terms with their runs, we must discuss the propriety of maintaining or destroying the system of pastoral tenancy.

MR. HARRISON'S ICE-MAKING MACHINE.

(From the Geelong Daily News, 25th February.)

Making ice by steam sounds almost as impracticable a process as that which Swift assures us certain philosophers in the island of Laputa devoted themselves to—calcining ice into gunpowder. Yet the former of these manufactures is now going on with complete success and regularity near the Western beach, and a great number of visitors have been attracted by the novelty and interest of the process during the last two or three days. The steam engine keeps up its monotonous beat and turns out the ice as composedly as if the great industrial giant of the age were at work among materials long familiar to him in Birmingham and Manchester and elsewhere, instead of having just been directed to a new and paradoxical pursuit. When the ice does not seem to be forming fast enough, all that has to be done is to stir the fire and put on more coals. The faster the fire burns, the faster the water freezes. When once this machine has been set in motion, all Mr. Harrison needs to enable him to go on making tons of ice daily for months, is a sufficiency of fuel and water.

Now let us proceed with a little explanation to appease the wonder we have provoked. It is difficult to make machinery comprehensible without the aid of diagrams, but we must do the best we can. The fundamentable principle of the machine depends upon the well-known property of ether to vaporise in vacuo at an exceedingly low temperature. In fact, ether boils in vacuo at a temperature greatly below 32 degrees, the freezing point of fresh water. The great loss of heat taking place during rapid evaporation speedily brings down, to a very low degree, the temperature of the whole mass of ether boiling in vacuo. The function of the steam-engine then is simply to keep a great air-pump incessantly at work. This air-pump constantly inhales the vapour of ether through one set of valves from the ether-boiler (where the ether is boiling at a temperature of perhaps a dozen degrees below the freezing point), and exhales the vapour through another set of valves into the worm of a kind of still, where it is reduced to a liquid state again, under a pressure equal to that of the atmosphere, or under artificially augmented pressure, if necessary. The condensed vapour passes back again into the ether-boiler by a set of hermetically closed pipes—there again flies into vapour on finding itself relieved from the pressure of the atmosphere, and passes through the pipe, and still again, carrying off with it a fresh quantity of caloric. Chemical theories on this subject are beautifully illustrated by the beautiful restoration of what may be called the balance of heat at the two ends of the apparatus—the heat carried off at the freezing end being all accounted for by the augmented temperature of the ether at the condensing end, where the water in the stills gets quite warm, and has to be frequently renewed. The great merit of Mr. Harrison's invention, so far as we have gone in our description, consists in the fact that the same ether is evaporated and condensed over and over again for months. The ether in the apparatus we have described, with all its valves and pipes communicating with each other, is utterly insulated and shut off from the surrounding atmosphere. It circulates perpetually through its own vascular system, perpetually carrying away caloric from the ether-boiler, and depositing it in the stills.

We have now got so far as to show how a certain ether-boiler is kept perpetually considerably below the freezing point; but we have yet to show how the cold thus produced—to use a phrase more convenient than accurate—is made available in the manufacture of ice. Now, it is a property of salt water to remain fluid at a temperature many degrees below that at which fresh water congeals. A stream of salt water is caused to flow in and out of the tubes (something like the fire tubes in a locomotive boiler) in the ether-boiler, and is thus reduced to a temperature considerably below 32 degrees. The remaining difficulties are now easily overcome. A constant supply of salt water, colder than ice, is obtained; and into a long trough of this cold salt water, tin moulds of fresh water have only to lie immersed, in order to be frozen. The trough is placed on an incline, and the salt water passes up and down among the tins, absorbing caloric, or "giving out cold." By the time it gets to the bottom of the trough (still below the freezing point) the salt water is at once pumped back to the top again to pass through the old tubes of the other boiler, where the imprisoned ether takes up the caloric the salt water has acquired in running down the trough, and carries it off to the stills at the other end of the room.

The trough is large enough to contain about sixty ice moulds, each containing about sixteen pounds of ice at one time. It is impossible to say exactly how long it takes to freeze a trough full of ice, as at the upper end where the stream of salt water flows in at its coldest, the process of congelation is much more rapid than at the lower end, so that the ice moulds at the top have to be changed before those at the lower end are frozen. The machine now in operation is calculated to make about five tons of ice in twenty-four hours, and the ice, we understand, can be sold at a handsome profit for from 2d. to 3d. per lb. If Mr. Harrison has got his patent rights adequately secured, we can hardly doubt that his ingenuity and perseverance will be handsomely rewarded in a pecuniary sense. And if a man deserves well of his country who makes two blades of grass grow where one grew before, Mr. Harrison is to be applauded yet more for having cheapened and facilitated the production of a commodity which combines two qualities not often allied—which is a very great luxury, and highly conducive to health.

TASMANIA.

By way of Melbourne we have Hobart Town papers to the 28th ultimo, and Launceston to the 26th.

The home Government, through Sir E. B. Lytton, has sanctioned the issue of one thousand rifles of the pattern of 1851, with the requisite accoutrements and ammunition, in the proportion of 500 rounds per rifle. A volunteer rifle corps is forthwith to be organised in Hobart Town.

A new fire reel, manufactured in Hobart Town, was tested the other day by the fire brigade there. The result of the trial was very satisfactory. The hose is wound round a barrel revolving round the axle of a pair of wheels, the whole of the framework occupying very little space, and can be moved with alacrity from place to place by a man with as much ease as a nursemaid propels a perambulator with a child in it. In case of fire the hose is unwound and applied to the fire-plug, when by the simple effect of the hydraulic pressure of the water in the mains a jet of water is thrown to the height of the clock of St. David's Cathedral. The machine, when the water is on, will do nearly as much service as any of the fire engines employed, and from its lightness and adaptability, if generally adopted, instead of the unwieldier engines now in use, will effect a large annual saving in the expenditure of the various insurance companies of this city.—Courier.

Bushranging.—The Government are much abused because they did not interpose to save the lives of men found guilty by juries of capital crimes, and condemned by the Judges to suffer death. Now we are advocates for the abolition of capital punishment altogether. But, except in some American states, society has not hitherto provided a substitute. The substitute required is a prison on the separate and solitary plan, in which the prisoner might be immured for life, and be regarded as dead in the eye of the law and to all intercourse with the world outside. But until secure and suitable prisons are provided, and the law altered; there is no alternative but to execute every man found under arms and robbing with violence. To let loose blood-thirsty miscreants, whose life consists of repeated acts of crime, would have deserved the severest reprehension—would have merited expulsion from power. The Executive in that case would have been morally guilty of the murder of all those innocent persons who would have fallen victims to the reprieved criminals during their prolonged career. It would have been better for them, and infinitely better for society, had their course of violence been cut short on conviction for the first capital offence committed. We think then the Government have acted in this matter as every true citizen and sound-hearted colonist would have wished. They allowed the law to take its course. There may be those who sympathise with bushrangers, and robbers, and pickpockets—and pity them, when caught, as "poor fellows;" but this indicates disease in the moral and social nature of the individual sympathisers. When thrown into their company we should be apt to button up our pockets and watch their movements with a keen eye, believing them to be "rogues in grain"—"Hard box, or linden, of a softer grain."—Launceston Examiner.

Murder.—Another and a fatal instance of the abominable use of the knife occurred at Westbury a few days ago. Two men, mates, were drinking in a tap-room full of reapers. One deliberately drew his knife and stabbed his companion to the heart. The man fell dead instantly. The murderer was immediately seized.

A remarkably handsome fountain has just arrived from England, and is to be erected in St. John's-square. It is equal, perhaps superior, to anything of the kind in these colonies, and gives us here an excellent idea of what art can accomplish. The fountain is of cast-iron bronzed; around the base are four figures—two male and two female—of personages in the classic mythology, larger than the ordinary stature of mortals and quite life-like. The work is entirely French—sculptor, statuary, and founders. When erected in the square, it will be a great ornament. It bears the names of the members of the Municipal Council of Launceston for 1858.—Examiner.

Colonial Missionary Society.—The annual meeting of the local branch of this society was held in St. John's-square Congregational Chapel, Launceston, on Monday evening. It had been announced that the Rev. T. Binney was to be present, and the chapel was filled. The Hon. W. S. Button took the chair. The report was read by the Rev. W. Law, and gave a very interesting account of the operations of the society. The financial report was read by the chairman, as treasurer, from which it appeared that the expenditure had been £241 19s. 4d., leaving a balance due to the treasurer of £3 7s. 1d. The collections made on the previous day amounted to about £45. Thereafter the meeting was addressed by the Rev. J. Lindsay, the worshipful the Mayor, the Rev. C. Price, Mr. Crookes, Rev. T. Binney, Rev. T. B. Harris, Mr. Jennings, Mr. Aitkenhead, and the Chairman.

The two local papers thus report the second and concluding day of the Launceston races:—

To the Editor of the Sydney Morning Herald.

Sir,—Perhaps you can inform the public under what Act of Parliament two Magistrates have sentenced Henry Linfield, who was discovered, between twelve and one o'clock on Saturday morning, ringing a bell at a shop in Pitt-street, to be imprisoned, with hard labour, for twelve calendar months, as stated in your police report of this day?

March 7. A NEW CHUM.

[The Vagrant Act.—Ed.]

To the Editor of the Sydney Morning Herald.

Sir,—A number of the Herald has just been put into my hands, containing a long letter from Mr. Alexander Berry, in which occur the following sentences:—"Late on Saturday afternoon I was informed that Dr. Lang had arrived at Numba, accompanied by a Dr. Aldcorn; and I was informed that the rev. Doctor intended to preach in the Scots Chapel on Sunday morning, and in the same building to deliver a political lecture in the afternoon. Having ascertained that I had been correctly informed, I wrote to the clergyman to say that so indecorous a proceeding would make him and his congregation a laughing-stock to other Christian denominations. He sent my letter to Dr. Lang, with a message that he could not have the church; and it was immediately given out that I had interdicted Dr. Lang from preaching the Gospel at Shoalhaven. Dr. Lang had, with the assistance of Dr. Aldcorn, endeavoured to deliver his political lecture in the Denominational Schoolhouse, and obtained an order from the trustees to permit him to do so."

On reading these words, I determined, and the more that I had previously been once and again misrepresented in the public journals with regard to this business, to publish forthwith a full and precise account of all that took place, so far as I was concerned, on the occasion of Dr. Lang's recent visit to this locality. Deferring this, as I am at present pressed for time, to a future opportunity, may I beg, through your columns, to ask Mr. Alexander Berry who it was that was honoured to communicate to him the bagful of intelligence the reception of which he recognises in the extract I have just quoted. And the information I urge the more, that, while tittle-tattling about others is most disgustingly prevalent in this neighbourhood, and by far too much encouraged, the reports he here intimates to have been conveyed to him concerning me are, almost without exception, altogether false and unfounded. For example—1st. If Dr. Lang intended to deliver a political lecture in my church on the Sabbath afternoon, it must have been with my sanction. Now I unhesitatingly assert that no such intention was entertained; nay, I go farther, and say no such intention could be entertained. And I am not a little astonished that Mr. Berry should continue to cling to the insinuation, inasmuch as on the Monday morning I wrote him, distinctly apprizing him that in my estimation the grant of a church in which to deliver a political lecture on the Lord's Day would be aggravated profanation, and was consequently a thing to which in no circumstances had I been, neither could I be, a party. 2nd, I as boldly aver that neither, I say neither, of the letters Mr. Berry addressed to me on the occasion concerning Dr. Lang were sent by me to the Dr., much less could I have communicated to the Dr. what Mr. Berry personally said to me, and personally requested me to do in regard to him, as I did not once come into personal contact with Dr. Lang during the entire period of his brief stay. 3rd, The trustees (Mr. Berry must mean the local school board) of the Denominational School did not give an order conceding to Dr. Lang the privilege of delivering a political lecture in the schoolroom. Mr. Berry's assertion to this effect must imply that I was a party to the order of which he speaks, as I am not merely a member, but, from my official position, chairman of the local board. Now, such an order I, for one, never saw. With such an order I, for one, had no connexion whatever. But not to encroach on your columns, let this suffice for the present. Hoping that Mr. Berry will at once out with his informer or informers, that, as befits the despicable characters, they may be exposed,

I am, Sir, your obedient servant,
JOHN H. GARVEN, A.M.,
Minister Scots Church.

Shoalhaven, March 3.

TO THE POSTMASTER-GENERAL.

(Per favour of the Sydney Morning Herald.)

Sir,—Allow me to direct your attention to the necessity of at once making a great change in the administration of your department, as it pertains to the principal country towns in the colony.

I address you, not in order to call your notice to reforms that can scarcely be carried into effect, but because in the town (Goulburn) of the district in which I live an excellent opportunity just now presents itself, and I address you through the columns of a newspaper, instead of privately, in order that the attention of other people, here and elsewhere, may be aroused.

The evils of having so important a department as the post-office of towns like Goulburn, Yass, Braidwood, and Bathurst managed by storekeepers and innkeepers are truly great. And these offices are often not even managed by the parties appointed to office, but by some private employees, unknown to you, and of whose characters, and possibly of whose very name, you are ignorant.

I will take Goulburn as an example, because I am more familiar with it than with any other.

I do not wish to say anything disrespectful of the present postmaster, but I would submit that it is in the highest degree objectionable that a post-office should be located at a public-house, and that such should be allowed only as a temporary expedient where no better arrangement can, by any possibility, be made. I believe that the salary of the postmasters in towns like Goulburn and Bathurst, with their commission on the sale of stamps, would be quite sufficient to pay the salary of a post-office clerk, directly under your control, as the officials in the General Post Office are. And it happens that, at the present time, there is a building which, to some extent, may be considered a public one—the Mechanics' Institute—the brick work of which is just finished, and portions of which are intended to be let. One portion would be admirably suited for a post-office, and it is the opinion of many that nothing better could be done than for the post-office to be fixed there. Certainly it is the best site in the town, and far more central than the present situation of the office.

I am, Sir, your obedient servant,

A.

THE AUSTRALIAN TOURNAMENT.

To the Editor of the Sydney Morning Herald.

Sir,—With reference to the letter of "A Colonist," relative to the amateur prizes to be given at my forthcoming entertainment at Dawes' Point, on Saturday next, I shall be obliged if you will allow me, through the medium of your journal, to state that I have seen the present subscribers to the prizes, and also my own pupils, on the subject, and they are willing to leave the arrangement of the matter entirely in my hands. I therefore propose that there shall be prizes given to all young gentlemen under twenty-one years of age, for fencing, broadsword, and bayonet practice; and a prize for fencing, or stick play, as may be agreed upon, for all really bona fide amateurs; and that the list for entrances shall be kept open on the ground at Dawes' Point until half-past one o'clock on Saturday next, when entrances can be made in presence of the referee and umpires. Sir Daniel Cooper, with his usual urbanity and desire to promote the interests of the colony, has kindly consented to act as referee; and Captain Ward, R.E., Deputy Master of the Mint, and Captain M'Lerie, Inspector-General of Police, have as kindly consented to act as umpires. I have now only to hope that those gentlemen who may be anxious to encourage these manly sports, and who take an interest in the establishment of the Gymnasium, will liberally come forward with their subscriptions, in order that the prizes shall be worthy of the acceptance of the competitors, and that the manly and useful they are intended to promote, may receive a stimulus which cannot fail, if carried out in a proper manner, to prove in the highest degree beneficial to young men themselves, but also hereafter to the colony at large. Nothing shall be wanting on my part to render the entertainment of Saturday next one of the best that has ever been witnessed in this colony, and in every respect deserving of the patronage and support of the ladies and gentlemen of Australia.

I am, Sir, yours, &c.,
GEORGE PARKER.

March 7.

To the Editor of the Sydney Morning Herald.

Sir,—Permit me again to occupy a space in your paper, as a rejoinder to that published by Mr. Parker in this day's issue.

First. No constable, or any person from the Coroner, made any inquiry for me at my residence. On Tuesday afternoon, on turning over a slate which hangs in the passage, I accidentally observed, written indistinctly across the names of the previous day, the following memorandum:—"Coroner wants Dr. Graham, Botney Road." I immediately inquired of the Dispenser, who had called and wrote it? he stated, and still states, no message was delivered to him, and he did not know who had written the memorandum. My servants state they received no message from constable or other person. There was no date to this memorandum; no time specified as to when or where the Coroner "wanted" me; and I looked upon it as intentionally done to deceive me, and, in fact, for a specific purpose, to prevent my attending at the inquest, for Mr. Parker must know that no medical gentleman would pay attention to so vague and uncourteous an intimation. I preserved the memorandum till next day, showed it to the dispenser, a brother practitioner, and others, as an instance of the legal and business-like manner in which the Coroner seeks for professional evidence. Even admitting Mr. Parker did all that he states he did do, or direct to be done, is it legal or proper, trusting to verbal messages, delivered by some careless constable, perhaps at the very time when the inquest is sitting? Does not this show a carelessness and indifference as to procuring evidence? Is the Coroner so ignorant of the Act as not to be aware that medical men are not bound to attend his inquests unless summoned, of the imperative necessity of his issuing in proper time the legal form of subpœna, as directed in the Act? I, for one, will never attend an inquest unless subpœnaed, when, if I do not attend the Coroner can issue his warrant; but it appears to me that there is a motive in thus sending verbal messages to medical practitioners, to attend as evidence at inquests on their patients. It very frequently happens that the party sent for is absent from home, or does not get the message in time. The inquest is held, the medical man sent for does not appear (or perhaps, comes too late), then the Coroner has a famous opportunity of exercising his assumed patronage—his medical friend, who generally is to be found present when an inquest is going on, is immediately called upon to make a post mortem examination, and give to the jury the result of such; and thus the public are deprived of the legitimate testimony of the medical attendant of the deceased by the partiality of the Coroner, and his friend pockets the fee of £3 3s, which ought to go to another. Such can occur frequently, and this is attested by the very frequent name of "Dr. Woodcock" giving evidence at inquests in all parts of the city.

Secondly. I must beg to make a few remarks relative to the manner in which the evidence was taken. Its correctness I deny. I still maintain that the nature and extent of the injuries causing death were not enquired into. Observations made by Mrs. Dunn were not taken down; she stated that her husband was seen twice a-day by me after he became worse, and very frequently before. The questions put to her by the Coroner relative to my professional treatment, exhibit ignorance and an animus. "No medicines save cough mixture was administered;" "his bowels were very regular"—and such like answers were elicited by cross-examination. My general treatment of the case was made the source of enquiry by direct questions put to the widow—all of which the Coroner had nothing to do with, at least before my evidence had been taken. "The nature of the accident was not enquired into by the Coroner and jury"—the evidence shows how far this is a "misstatement."

In conclusion, I would recommend Mr. Parker, next time he holds an inquest on any of my deceased patients, and excludes my attendance, to "show" more "fertility" of "imagination" in misdirecting the jury relative to medical matters, &c., of which he, more than non-professional Coroners generally, is ignorant of.

I remain, Sir, yours, &c.,
HENRY GRAHAM, M.R.C.S.

Kent-street, March 4th.

DEATH FROM THE BITE OF A CENTIPEDE.

To the Editor of the Sydney Morning Herald.

Sir,—Since reading in to-day's Herald an account of the melancholy death from the effects of the bite of a centipede, I feel somewhat encumbered with misgivings of a neglect of duty, which, on reflection, humanity had rendered imperative. However, I will at once avail myself of your aptitude for the public's good, and state that some time ago, from information I accidentally obtained, I captured two or three centipedes, which I put into a vial bottle filled with gin; the liquor, if applied to the bite of a centipede, being, according to my information, an infallible specific against any ill results of the bite of a centipede. I then informed my neighbours that I had such a remedy, and since then have had two opportunities of testing its merit. The first, a carpenter engaged on the premises rear of the post-office, Botany Road, having placed a piece of timber on his shoulder, suddenly felt an unpleasant sensation on the upper part of his chest; thrusting his hand to the spot, to his dismay he discovered a large centipede, "holding hard" upon him. The postmaster immediately brought the man to my residence, and I applied the remedy, keeping the wound moistened with the spirit for about twenty minutes, when all unpleasant feelings and symptoms of inflammation had entirely ceased. The second case was that of a young girl, who, whilst removing some firewood, was bitten in three parts of her finger. In this case I also employed the remedy—with some perseverance—and, although much pain and some bad symptoms had set in, the result of the application was eminently successful. Certain I am that this remedy cannot be too well known; and how easily it may be prepared and rendered available, even to the saving of life, in every neighbourhood, by individuals of mere common forethought and humanity.

I am, Sir, your obedient servant,
T. B. HARWELL.

THE LUCRETIA.—Efforts are being made by Mr. Beattie to raise what remains of the hull of this vessel, which was destroyed by fire in this harbour on the 26th of June, 1839. The method used is relieving the hull of the ballast that was in her, when she was sunk, by means of a diving apparatus. Punts will then be laid in such a position that she will be lifted, and when once off the ground can be towed to shallow water and broken up. This journal of the 28th June, 1839, published the following particulars respecting the occurrence:—"The barque Lucretia, bound from this port to India, was, we are sorry to say, totally destroyed by fire on the evening of Wednesday last. It is a matter of doubt as to the cause of the fire, but it is supposed that it was occasioned by the contact of the flame of a candle with the bunghole of a cask of spirits. Every assistance was rendered by the officers and crews of H. M. ships Pelorus and Herald, but the fire increased at such a rate as very soon to leave little hope of saving the vessel. Captain Harding fired into the burning hull for the purpose of scuttling her, but without effect. It lay a flaming mass, which persons in boats feared to approach, on account of a rumour that there were several barrels of gunpowder on board. But for this, perhaps, some more effectual means might have been taken to extinguish the fire. Up to a late hour in the night fragments of blazing wood were to be seen floating about the harbour, and the hull of the vessel presented one vast sheet of flame, until about 11 o'clock, when the fire subsided. The gunpowder, which exploded several hours before, carried away the quarter-deck and the masts, from which time until morning the vessel smouldered away to the water's edge. We hear that she was fully insured. She was a new vessel, and about to sail for India in ballast."

GALLANT CONDUCT OF THE CREW OF THE MALVINA VIDAL.—The Malvina Vidal, a fine Hamburg vessel of nearly 1000 tons, took in a cargo of timber in thirty-six days in the Baltic Sea, at a place named Myhamm, and after touching at Sunderham to clear out (there being no Custom authorities at the former place), sailed for this port, where her orders were to await her. The run down Channel was effected in a short time, and on the 11th November she fell in with an English barque, in latitude 44 degrees 39 minutes, N., longitude 15 degrees 7 minutes, W. On signalling her, in answer to the flag of distress which she had flying, she was found to be the Toronto, Willbourne, master, bound from Liverpool (six or seven days out) to Constantinople, with a valuable cargo of machinery, and three passengers. In a heavy gale from the S. W. she had sprung a leak. The weather was very heavy at the time, with a terrific cross-sea running, in which it was scarcely supposed a boat could live; but the Toronto had lost all chance from hers, for, on cutting away the masts to relieve the vessel, the falling spars had completely stove the whole of the boats, and unless the Malvina Vidal had so opportunely arrived the position of the Toronto's crew was extremely critical, for the pumps were ineffectual in keeping the ship free, and the ponderous nature of the cargo had prevented them from throwing overboard more than a few tons, which could have but little effect on the vessel's position in her disabled state. The chief officer of the Malvina Vidal immediately took charge of that vessel's boat, though, in consequence of the heavy sea running, it was impossible to lie alongside the wreck; but a line being made fast to the spanker-boom end, several of the crew and passengers were by means of it taken safely into the boat, and when seven had been rescued from the sinking ship, the mate left her, as the capacity of his boat obliged him for their safety to take such a course. On returning to the Toronto, such was the eagerness of the seamen to reach the boat that they jumped overboard and swam to her; but by the daring and intrepid conduct of the rescuers they were all taken safely on board. With this addition to the occupants of the vessel she proceeded on her voyage, the captain having determined to land them on the Island of Maderia; but on the ninth day after the loss of the Toronto, a French vessel was signalled bound to Marseilles, and the master having offered the shipwrecked crew a passage to that port, they availed themselves of it and were transhipped, having lost everything of which they were possessed. Captain Kessel reports having spoken on December 29th, in latitude 24 degrees 41 minutes, S., longitude 28 degrees 30 minutes E., the English ship Swiftsure, bound from Melbourne to London, 45 days out. On January 4th, in latitude 33 degrees 34 minutes S., longitude 24 degrees 24 minutes W., a large American ship, flying 3874 under 3rd pendant (Phoceon) bound from Callao to Amsterdam, 53 days out. On February 20th, passed an American ship, 4305, 3rd pendant (Marcellus), from Melbourne, but on account of the stiff breeze blowing at the time could not possibly ascertain the destination. Nothing else worthy of record has occurred during the passage, no damage been sustained beyond a trifling loss of bulwarks in the Channel. The Swedish ship Sir Charles Napier, commanded by Captain Waller, had laden timber, and, in company with a Dutch vessel, having on board a similar cargo, sailed on the same day as the Malvina Vidal, bound to Melbourne. The captain was also informed that three or four vessels at Gottenberg were loading timber for the Australias, but for which colony it was uncertain.—South Australian Register.

TUESDAY, MARCH 8, 1859.

THE statement made recently before the Assembly in reference to the state of the Surveyors' Department, especially to the measurement of land, was calculated to create some alarm. Any ordinary blunders it is possible to correct, but it is not very agreeable to those who hold estates under the Crown to be told that they are overlapped by previous grants, or that the question of ownership may depend upon the variations of the compass.

The fact is, the survey of land is one of the greatest practical difficulties of the land administration. So much must be entrusted to individuals, and so much depends, not only on their skill, but on their instruments, that even the ablest directions and the best office arrangements may not prevent or detect very many disastrous errors. The popular idea is to keep the survey of the Crown lands well ahead of the demand, that the people who want to purchase land may never be at a loss for opportunities. This is doubtless an important maxim, but unfortunately the flow of population is uncertain as the wind. A careful survey is a work of time, and it has happened, as in the case of Rockhampton, that appearances pointing to a probable demand have been totally deceptive. If surveys depend on landmarks, they are in danger of being misplaced on the map, or of being obliterated or destroyed. It is said that one township, at least, cannot be found at all. It appears, however, that the surveyor sent an imaginary sketch to head-quarters, intending to follow it up with actual survey, and with the expectation of making the true plan accord with the fictitious one; meantime his functions were suspended, and thus the township never was more than an idea!

In a country where the greater part of the soil is in a state of nature, and the settlement of population is a chief duty of Government, the arrangements for opening up the country are of vital importance; but it necessarily involves a great cost. If a staff is retained sufficient for all emergencies, it will sometimes be greatly in excess. When there is a lull in the sale, there will appear a great waste of public money; but surveyors cannot be improvised on the spot, and thus, if the staff be inadequate for all occasions, a cry will be heard that the Government is "locking up the land."

There are three forms of survey which have their advocates in the colonies. The trigonometrical is, doubtless, the best where it is practicable,—did it not involve an enormous expense, require great accuracy and a degree of skill not commonly obtainable. In an old country, where land is extremely valuable, it will bear the cost; if damage be done to instruments, it can be readily repaired; if one surveyor breaks down, another is at hand to replace him; but in a country like Australia, any one of these difficulties is likely to happen, and any one of them may be seriously obstructive.

In Victoria it is proposed to survey the land by squares, which it seems is practised in America. A geodetic survey is made by astronomical observations, fixing the four corners of the block; this is done by the Government. The block contains a certain number of eighty-acre sections. Having proceeded thus far, the Government leaves the rest to private surveyors, who measure off the square into eighty-acre farms. We see that this scheme finds favour in Victoria. There is, however, a great difference between the surface and quality of lands in America and those of Australia. The American prairie is often for hundreds of miles as flat as a table; a child might cut it up into squares.

In this country the compass has been used in the survey; but the needle is liable to variations, and is not therefore a sure guide. If then a line be drawn by compass in 1859, and another in 1869, they will not be parallel, and the farms sold at these different periods will be liable to lose or gain by overlapping. Such is the possibility, and, where the surveyor depends on the compass alone, must be the practice. We understand, however, that the compass is only secondary, and that the surveyor depends chiefly on landmarks, and on the permanent features of the country; such as the bends of rivers, and their confluence, and that, where possible, land already occupied is made a starting point. No doubt, by these means, a skilful surveyor may retrace his steps, and prevent any serious errors; but it cannot be denied that it does require both skill and care to avoid them.

There seems to be almost an insuperable difficulty in effecting a perfect survey in the distant interior. The surveyor has to work his way through the bush, where his progress is intercepted at every step. He is often indebted to the compass for the knowledge of his whereabouts, but he cannot rely upon it for accurate measurement; nor does he do so. The Waste Lands Act requires that all land shall be surveyed and delineated on the map before it is sold. If it is sufficiently marked out to the purchaser, perhaps all is done which can be attainable in a new country except in the most populous districts. In England to this day land changes hands under boundary lines and landmarks, and indeed no survey dependant on instruments would be admitted in cases of legal dispute.

The surveys in former times were made but loosely. A few hundred yards in a vast solitude were deemed of little consequence by the settler, and still less by the Government. He started with his location order; went forth in search of the best land he could find; and the Government accepted such a survey as circumstances permitted to be made. The surveyor, who was sometimes indolent and sometimes corrupt, run his chain over the ground at quick march. It is in vain in such circumstances to look for accuracy, and we are often obliged to admit as the overruling right that which is founded on actual possession.

It is, notwithstanding, of great concern that our survey system should be perfect and efficient as possible. Nothing creates so much discontent as needless difficulties in the acquisition of land. Whatever may be done, we are aware that discontent will exist, and will be both loud and importunate. Some persons complain because a surveyor is not sent to any place they may fancy and at their bidding; and others expect to set all the department in motion to afford them answers which the published information would supply them. It is however desirable to keep this department both popular and efficient. It is very hard for an immigrant to have to battle for land, to loose both his time and his money in hunting for a homestead. We had better give the land away, than obstruct its occupation by technicalities.

AN interesting report upon the possible improvement of Wollongong Harbour, by the Engineer-in-chief of Harbour Works, has been laid on the table of the Assembly, showing the cost at which the accommodation much needed by the growing trade of the port can be supplied. The proposed works are divided into three parts—first, the enlargement and deepening of the present basin, which is estimated to cost £7694 10s.; secondly, the excavation of an inner basin, which will absorb £10,213 10s. 6d.; and thirdly, the construction of a breakwater on the northern side, which will cost £8,893 17s. 4d., the total estimated outlay for the complete work.

To accommodate the coasting steamers which take away the dairy produce of the port, it would be sufficient to extend the present pier, to form the western breakwater, and deepen the present basin. But in addition to the agricultural resources of the district, there are coal mines at Mount Keera, which are being worked with success, the fuel being reputed of good quality for steam purposes. It is mainly to accommodate the coasting colliers that will take away the coal, that the inner basin will be required.

There can be no question about the importance to the settlements on the coast, of the improvement of the harbours at which produce can be shipped. The occupation of the land round these outports has considerably increased of late years, especially under the impulse given by the employment of steamers, which fur ish quicker and cheaper transit of produce than can be obtained inland. But to complete the convenience, it is requisite that the conveyance should be regular, and this can only be the case when there is safe harbourage, in all weathers, for the class of vessels employed. At present, this is not the case, as the steamers are sometimes unable from the heavy swell to get to the moorings, or to lie safely at them, and can therefore neither discharge their freight, nor take in a return loading, being thus doomed to make a journey for nothing, or else to lie too off the port waiting for calm weather. It is not one outport merely that suffers from this inconvenience, nor is it merely on the coast to the southward. All along the coast, between Twofold Bay and Moreton Bay, there are similar harbour improvements required to those which are demanded at Wollongong, and requests are urged upon the Government, with more or less importunity. A little while ago, Kiama came forward with a strong claim, so has Shoalhaven, and so has Bellambi, and the new Minister for Public Works, whoever he may be, will find it hard work to satisfy all the claims of this description that will be made upon him—to satisfy urgent wants and yet keep clear of favouritism. And the most difficult part of the task will lie in the fact that there is as yet no recognised principle of public policy in accordance with which all such claims can be met and disposed of.

With regard to roads, the Legislature has lately adopted a decisive policy. The three great trunk lines have been taken exclusively under Government patronage, the residents in their vicinity being relieved of all expense with regard to them. Branch roads are left to various trusts, who may receive a proportionate dole from the Treasury according as there is money to spare. So with regard to local township improvements. They are all devolved now upon municipalities, the Government doing nothing beyond subscribing in proportion to the rates. The general railway policy, too, is pretty well marked. There will be three trunk lines accommodating the chief inland districts, leaving, for the most part, if not exclusively, all side districts to be accommodated by branches at the risk of private enterprise. But no general principle has been laid down with respect to the extent and method of public outlay on harbour improvements along the coast. At present it is a matter of importunity to get a grant, and the most pertinacious and troublesome petitioners are likely to come off best. Constituencies see this plainly enough, and, in their desire for local improvement, are likely to elect men whose principal qualifications will be that, by making themselves subservient to the Minister of the day, they will earn a donation for the district, or, by making themselves threateningly troublesome, will wring it from him as the price of more compliant behaviour—not by any means a desirable class of parliamentary men. It is abundantly clear already, that it would be a great improvement if the Public Works department could be decentralised. It is a misfortune that private enterprise is so little prepared to undertake these works of construction, which the colony so much needs, and that for nearly every thing, the Government is appealed to. It is a political misfortune, and opens a door for an indirect style of corruption which is but too well adapted to try the virtue of public men. Honorable members, and free and independent electors cannot but be sorely tempted to give their votes to the statesman who can secure them a money vote in return.

But under the present system of things, it seems almost impossible to break in upon the State monopoly of public works, and the claim that the coast settlers put forward for harbour improvements is one that cannot be resisted with a good grace, or even with justice. If the Treasury pays for the improvement of transit inland, it would be difficult to show why it should refuse to pay also for improving the transit of produce by sea. The settler at Wollongong is virtually taxed to pay for the railway to Bathurst—why should not the settler at Bathurst be equally taxed to pay for a better harbour at Wollongong. The Great Northern Railway aids the development of the coal-fields in the valley of the Hunter. On what grounds can a similar outlay of public money be refused to aid in opening up the mineral wealth of Bellambi or Mount Keera! The coast line of country is not at all benefited by the inland roads and railroads; on the contrary, it is proportionately injured, for it is exposed to a severer competition. The railway gives to the inland farmer the facility and cheapness of transit which the sea has given to the settler on the coast.

The dairy farmer at Kiama virtually helps to pay for the railroad that will enable the farmer on the Nepean to compete with him for the sale of produce in the Sydney market, and if the State thus helps on one batch of settlers, it is but natural that others should cry out for some equivalent gift. Harbours are to the coast residents what railroads are to the inland settlers—the one thing wanted to provide satisfactory access to the metropolitan market. If the State undertakes to supply the one, how is it to withhold the other? It would be better, doubtless, if private enterprise, or local management would supply both wants, and there were no need to apply to the central Government at all—if the rivalry of different districts could be settled among themselves, and the victory go to the most enterprising. But if this cannot be, it only remains to devise some general principle in accordance with which public money shall be spent, by which favouritism shall be excluded as far as possible, and an equitable distribution of public money secured.

CENTRAL POLICE COURT.

MONDAY.

BEFORE Mr. Forbes, Captain M'Lean, Mr. G. Hill, Mr. Lucas, Mr. Rowley, and Mr. Peden.

Twenty-four persons, convicted of having been found drunk in the streets, were fined—some 10s., and others 20s; in default of payment to be imprisoned twenty-four hours. One of these unhappy creatures, a woman named Tester, was afterwards charged by sergeant Lane with having for some time past neglected her infant child—several times he had seen her let the babe fall from her arms, being incapacitated by intoxication from protecting either herself or child. Dr. Moon deposed that at the request of serjeant Lane he examined the child, which he found to be in a most emaciated state, not the result of disease, but of sheer starvation; on its body were several bruises, and it was altogether in a state indicative of shameful neglect. The bench ordered the woman, in default of sureties for her good behaviour, to be imprisoned one month.

Five women were convicted of having, while drunk, made use of obscene language in public places, and were severally fined 40s., the alternative being imprisonment for periods varying from one week to one month. A man was convicted of a similar offence with the addition of having resisted the apprehending officer, and tearing his clothes. He was sentenced to pay £3 (10s. to be deducted for damages), or to be imprisoned one month.

Two vagrants were severally sentenced to be imprisoned and kept to hard labour one calendar month.

May Flott was found guilty of having stolen 23s. belonging to her master, Charles Saunders, of Pyrmont, publican. The girl had been some weeks in his service, but he had no suspicion of her honesty until Saturday. He had on several recent occasions missed money from his drawer, but could not discover the thief; on Friday night he marked some money, and on Saturday morning a deficiency was discovered; prisoner was called into the parlour, and, on being told that some money was missing from the drawer, she took from her pocket a half-sovereign, and 13s. in silver, which she said she found on the floor under or near the drawers; all this money was found to be marked, and she was given into custody. The Bench sentenced her to pay a penalty of 20s., or to be imprisoned one month.

Charles Byrnes, aged 13 years, Edward Kinchela, 16, and William Holloway, 15, were severally found guilty of having, on Sunday last, annoyed and insulted females walking on Hyde Park. The first named little ruffian was sentenced to pay 40s. or to be imprisoned fourteen days; the second to pay £5 or to be imprisoned six weeks, and the third to pay £5 or to imprisoned one month.

Frederick Mayer pleaded guilty to an information filed under the Dog Act, in which he was charged with being the keeper of a ferocious dog in Sussex-street which, on the 27th ultimo, rushed at and bit constable Spooner, and was sentenced to pay 40s. penalty, with 3s. 6d. costs and 10s. for damage to the constable's trousers; or to be imprisoned seven days.

Thomas Shean, John Cochrane, and Jacob Scatton, pleaded guilty to informations filed by inspector Singleton for Sunday trading at the entrances to the Domain, and were severally sentenced to pay 2s. 6d. penalty, and a like sum for costs, or to be imprisoned two days.

WATER POLICE COURT.

MONDAY.

BEFORE the Water Police Magistrate and Mr. E. Hill.

Eight persons, who had been found drunk in different public places, were severally fined 10s.; in default of payment they were ordered to be imprisoned for twenty-four hours.

John Walker (alias Teddy Antony) was brought before the court in custody of constable Scarlett, who had apprehended him in Argyle-street, on a charge of being a prisoner of the Crown illegally at large. Prisoner was identified as Edward Smith, who had, in 1856, been sentenced at the Supreme Court to three years on the roads, but had received a ticket-of-leave for the district of Ipswich. In defence, prisoner stated that he was a married man, and having wished to come to Sydney to take back his wife to his district he did so without a pass, as they would not give one from Ipswich. It was ordered by the bench that prisoner be returned to the Crown, with a recommendation that his ticket-of-leave be cancelled.

A charge was preferred against James Hopkins, second mate of the Atalanta, that he had attempted to throw Alfred Ruffles, a seaman, from the main-royal yard, while Ruffles was loosening sail on the high seas. The case was postponed until this day (Tuesday) for evidence.

Edward Farbrother was charged, on the complaint of Joseph Westbrook, with having at the North Shore wilfully and maliciously destroyed a quantity of building materials, namely, timber, the property of complainant. It appeared from the evidence of plaintiff and another witness that defendant and his partner had contracted to build a house for complainant, and had to pull down an old house, in order to use some of the materials in the construction of the new one. A fire had been made for boiling water for the meals of the workmen employed at the building, and upon this fire defendant threw an architrave, some battens, joists, &c., from the old building. No value could be placed upon the materials so consumed, nor was any evidence adduced to show that there was any malice in defendant's conduct or words. The case was therefore dismissed.

Rose Clarke, for using insulting language toward Jane May, was fined 10s., or in default of payment to be imprisoned for three days.

THE ROSTER.—The following magistrates have been requested to attend the official duties at this Court in the course of the ensuing week:—Tuesday, March 8th, Mr. W. S. Deloitte, Hon. F. Lord, and Mr. E. S. Hill; Wednesday, 9th, Hon. J. W. Bligh, Messrs. B. Burdekin, and R. Hill; Thursday, 10th, Hon. D. Jones, Mr. J. J. Kettle, and Mr. A. M'Arthur; Friday, 11th, Mr. B. Darley, Mr. J. P. Egan, and Mr. B. Buchanan; Saturday, 12th, Hon. J. Alexander.

CAMILLE.—Last Wednesday night, the highly effective drama of "Camille," founded upon that well-known novel of Dumas the younger—Le Dame aux Camelias—was produced for the first time in this colony, at the Prince of Wales Theatre, with very distinguished success. The cast is in every respect an admirable one; each character is well supported, and a breathless interest awakened and sustained throughout the whole piece. As, however, we believe that this is the drama in which Miss Mary Provost, the new actress, is to make her debut on Monday next, it will be proper, as a matter of justice, to delay any special criticism upon either the play or the mode of its performance, until the other Camille shall have unfolded itself; and then, perhaps, to make a few observations upon both. With regard to the extraordinary success of Camille, as brought out at the Prince of Wales, it is simply a matter of fact—the morale of the whole piece being, of course, a matter of opinion. Camille was played again to good houses on Thursday, Friday, Saturday, and yesterday, and will, in all probability, be repeated throughout the current week.

TREE AND STUMP EXTRACTOR.—We have on several occasions been eye-witnesses to the exploits of Messrs. Mansfield and Hewitt's extractor for felling trees and rooting up stumps. The principle adopted by them renders the machine irresistible for the purposes to which it is applied. The tallest trees bend in about five minutes to the mechanical power of the lever. We are not surprised to find this invention gaining signal favour with our squatters and farmers. It won a gold medal at Cranbourne, and has elsewhere been well received.—Age.

ELECTORAL.—The friends of Mr. John Hay have at length bestirred themselves with a view of introducing him as a candidate for re-election. About a dozen gentlemen met at the Imperial Hotel on Monday evening, and after mature deliberation they attached their names to a letter inquiring Mr. Hay's intentions, and pledging themselves to use their utmost endeavours to secure his return. Should a favourable reply be received, a requisition in due form will at once be prepared.—Border Post.

STATION PROPERTY.—It is reported that Mr. James Wilson is now in treaty for the purchase of the Quarto Quarto station on the Murray, the figure being £18,000. Mr. Wilson has been spoken of as a probable candidate for parliamentary honours.—Border Post.

MELBOURNE.

[BY ELECTRIC TELEGRAPH.]

Melbourne, Monday, 6 p.m.

A deputation of aborigines had an interview with the Commissioner of Lands, representing the impossibility of living in Goulburn, the ancient seat of the tribe, and asked for one thousand acres of land and agricultural implements. Mr. Duffy promised a consideration of their claim.

Two more fires in Melbourne. No great damage done.

Trade very slack.

A sale of Mr. Cruikshank's stock is advertised for Thursday, without reserve. Buyers are awaiting this stock sale, which is very large.

At a meeting of the shareholders of the National Bank, resolutions were adopted determining to sign deeds of settlement and commence working vigorously.

ADELAIDE.—Flour, £16. Wheat, 6s. 10d.

SYDNEY CHAMBER OF COMMERCE.

THE general monthly meeting of the members of the Sydney Chamber of Commerce was held yesterday at half-past three o'clock. Mr. J. S. Willis took the chair.

MINUTES.

The Secretary read the minutes of the meetings of the 21st January, 12th, 16th, and 21st of February, which were confirmed.

The minutes of the 28th of February were amended by inserting the remarks of the chairman (Mr. A. Campbell) respecting the validity of the election of the chairman and deputy-chairman of the chamber for the ensuing year.

NEW MEMBERS.

Messrs. J. R. Street, J. Napier, W. B. Walker, C. C. Durham, A. S. Leathes, were severally ballotted for and elected members of the Chamber.

Mr. DICKSON moved, "That, in the opinion of this Chamber the charges now imposed on vessels visiting and trading to and from this port under an Act to increase rates of pilotage, &c., dated 21st July, 1858, are excessive, bear unequally in some cases, and are, therefore, calculated to act restrictively, and with serious injury to the commerce of the port." This Act to which he referred, came into operation eight months ago, and he believed the Government would never have proposed it if they had not been hard up. He maintained that this Act was so loosely drawn that no person could understand it; and when it was first sent down to the Custom House, the Collector and other persons could not make it out, and some dispute having arisen, it was sent back to the Crown Law Officers. He contended that the Act operated most unjustly, and that the charges were excessive. He alluded to several instances in which small vessels had to pay large sums for pilotage, &c., and the rates were so charged that large ships did not have to pay in the same proportion. He objected to the policy of charging any pilotage rates, because they depended in this colony so much on their imports and exports; and thought, if any charges were made, it should only be sufficient to cover the expenses incurred by the Government in providing for the accommodation of the vessels entering this port.

Mr. A. CAMPBELL seconded the motion pro forma. He agreed, although he had not given the subject much attention, with the remarks of Mr. Dickson, that the rates were excessive. He was opposed to the Government making a profit out of the Pilotage Act, and maintained that the Chamber should interfere and get the rates reduced, so as to make it self-supporting. He understood that there was now a surplus of £2000 which had been devised under the Act, and which sum was not to go into the general revenue, but was claimed by the Pilot Board. He was, however, of opinion, that it was a good provision of the Act to make the vessels pay a certain rate, whether they took a pilot on board or not.

Mr. DRUERY thought it would be well if the Chamber did not commit itself hastily in this matter. This motion had been given notice of only three days ago, and, as there were so few members who were interested present, he begged to move the adjournment of the debate to this day fortnight, in order that the motion might be fully discussed.

Mr. BRODZIAK thought the matter ought to be referred to a committee. He agreed if it were proved that there was a surplus from the rates collected, that the rates ought to be reduced.

Mr. SAWKINS seconded the motion for adjournment.

The motion for adjournment was put and carried.

RESIGNATIONS.

The CHAIRMAN said, he took this opportunity of returning them thanks for the honour they had done him in electing him their chairman for the ensuing year. But as some doubts were raised as to his not being eligible to the appointment, he felt he should be only doing his duty in resigning. Probably at the next meeting the matter would be introduced. He thought the same objection which applied to his election applied to the election of the deputy-chairman.

Mr. STUART said he agreed with what had fallen from the chairman. He thought, however, that under the new rules and regulations they commenced de novo, and that no exception ought to have been taken. But as many members thought their election invalid, he considered it would be better for them all to resign, and allow a new election to take place.

Mr. A. CAMPBELL said he had resigned his office as member of the committee, because he thought it would be inconsistent for him to remain a member after the opinion he had expressed at the last meeting of the validity of the election. He had been told that if he thought the motion illegal he ought not to have put it. He, however, considered the chairman was the mouthpiece of the meeting, and he had, therefore, no other course but to do what the meeting required. He stated his objection, and had pointed out to the Chamber the rule by which he was guided; but the Chamber insisted on electing Mr. Stuart and Mr. Willis.

After a few observations from Mr. MURRAY and Mr. DRUERY—

The CHAIRMAN said—He thought it would be better for them to resign and have a new election, because, if this were not done, they might, at some future meeting, have it said that their proceedings were irregular, because they had broken their new rules, in the first instance, in the election of chairman, deputy-chairman, and committee.

Mr. MURRAY thought the rules had better be referred back to the committee to be perfected, because this rule was very vague and indefinite.

Mr. DRUERY suggested that it would be advisable for Mr. A. Campbell to withdraw his resignation.

Mr. A. CAMPBELL refused to take this course, because he was convinced he was correct in the objection he had taken.

After some conversation respecting the question of the legality of the late election, the Chamber separated.

NEW MOTION.

Mr. DRUERY to move at the next meeting, "That in the opinion of this Chamber the election of Messrs. J. S. Willis and A. Stuart, to the offices of chairman and deputy-chairman, was perfectly legal, and it confirms the same, requesting these gentlemen to withdraw their resignations."

THE MUTTAMA REEF.—A gentleman who has recently returned from Muttama informs us that the reef was lately visited by Mr. Commissioner Lynch, of the Adelong, for the purpose of hearing and disposing of a number of disputes that had arisen amongst the reefers. The Commissioner held a Court of Inquiry on Thursday and Friday, in Mr. Hayes' tent, and, after full investigation, gave decisions in the several complaints brought before him. The decisions arrived at are stated to have given very general satisfaction. The Commissioner, we are informed, expressed agreeable surprise at the good prospects of the reef turning out well, and stated his intention at once to recommend the Government to proclaim the Muttama a gold-field. The diggers are erecting strong slab huts, one or two stores have been opened, two applications for publicans' licenses have been made, and altogether the place begins to assume an air of permanent occupation.—Yass Courier.

MUNICIPAL COUNCIL.

A SPECIAL meeting of the Municipal Council, to receive the annual report of the Finance Committee, was held yesterday, at three o'clock p.m. Present—the Mayor and twelve Aldermen.

MINUTES.

The minutes of the previous meeting were read and confirmed.

FINANCE COMMITTEE REPORT.

His Worship the Mayor stated that the object for which he had called the Council together was to consider the annual report of the Finance Committee, which was now laid on the table.

On the motion of Alderman THURLOW, seconded by Alderman MURPHY, the Council resolved itself into a committee of the whole to consider the report, which was as follows:—

Report of the Finance Committee of the Municipal Council with reference to the City Fund for the year 1859.

Your committee having at length been enabled to collect together the information required to correctly estimate the probable receipts and expenditure of the Municipal Council in connection with the City Fund during the year 1859, have now the honour to submit the following report.

SALARIES OF THE OFFICERS.

The first matter which engaged the attention of your Committee was that of the salaries of the several officers of the Council, and after a most careful consideration of the duties performed in the different departments, they are prepared to recommend certain alterations in many of the offices—rendered desirable, as it appears to your committee, either by the increased or diminished amount of labour which the parties have to perform, or the extent of responsibility attached to the particular office.

In the department of the Town Clerk your Committee find that during the past year the business of the office has so largely increased that it is found impossible to complete the same during ordinary office hours, and after mature consideration of this increase of labor, and at the same time regarding the many years of honorable service the head of this department has rendered to the different corporate bodies of this city, your committee have much pleasure in recommending the advancement of his position.

To the Town Clerk's assistant, whose duties have become more onerous, and whose unremitting attention they with pleasure acknowledge, your committee have likewise awarded such an increase as they, after careful deliberation, deem merited.

The only other salary which it has been thought desirable to supplement is that of the second clerk employed in the department of the City Engineer. In the course of their enquiries your committee were made aware that the system at present adopted for the payment of the men engaged on the city works is defective and objectionable, and they would, therefore, recommend that this duty be placed entirely in the hands of the City Engineer's clerk, granting him an additional sum of £50 per annum for this extra service and for the responsibility and risk attached thereto. The party performing this duty will be required to provide security to the extent of £500.

The recommendations for reduction in the salaries of the City Solicitor, Officer of Health, Clerk of Markets, Inspector of Vehicles, and Inspector of Slaughter-houses have not been made by your committee without due consideration of the services rendered by each of these officers. In the case of the Officer of Health, whose salary it is proposed to reduce from £400 to £100 per annum, it is necessary to state that during an enquiry held before another committee of the Council, it has been represented that under the present construction of the various Acts having reference to the particular duties of this Officer, it is not possible for him to enforce those sanitary measures which were in contemplation when the appointment was determined upon. It appears, therefore, to your committee that, until some such alterations have been made in the law as will enable the Health Officer to more effectually carry out those important duties which properly belong to such an office, the amount of remuneration herein recommended is as great as the Council can, with a due regard to the economical expenditure of the citizens' funds, award at the present time.

The abolition of the offices of Assistant to the Inspector of Nuisances and of the Draftsman temporarily employed in the City Engineer's Department is recommend, as your committee consider such appointments to be no longer necessary.

Your Committee would suggest that the additions to the salaries herein recommend do take effect from the beginning of the present year, and the reductions and abolition of offices after the expiration of one month from the adoption of this report by the Council. The total amount of reduction in the item of salaries as recommended in this report, and including the allowance to the auditors, already abolished by the Council, is £910 per annum.

Considerable difficulty has been experienced in arriving at a determination as to the manner in which the salaries of the several officers of the Corporation should be distributed between the City Sewerage and Water Funds—the small amount of work now being performed in connection with the sewerage of the city, rendering it necessary to make a material alteration in the proportion charged to the separate funds last year. As the expenditure under this head must be very inconsiderable during the year, your committee consider it advisable not to take the same into consideration at all at the present moment, leaving the Council to charge the sewerage account with its fair share of the expenditure of the department, at the close of the year.

A statement of the proposed salaries and the manner of distribution between the City and Water Funds is hereunto attached:—

GENERAL EXPENDITURE.

The various items which your committee have estimated as forming the expenditure of the Council for 1859, are shown in the annexed schedule (B), and exhibit a total sum (exclusive of the amount required for City improvements) of £34,146. Included in this sum is an item of £10,000 for the carrying out of the alterations to the George-street markets, which your Committee have charged against the City rates and the General Revenue of the Corporation. But they would suggest to the Council, whether, as this work is one which will yield a considerable return to the city, it will not be advisable to raise the amount, or some portion of it, by debentures, leaving it in the power of the Council to devote a larger sum than that at present estimated, for the formation and repair of streets. The only other additions to the ordinary expenditure of the Council which your Committee have suggested, are a further sum of £1000 for lighting purposes, and a sum of £1000 towards the erection of the new Town Hall.

GENERAL REVENUE.

The total amount of revenue which the Council will receive during this year (not including that raised by direct taxation), is estimated at £29,119, as shown in Schedule C. Your Committee think, however, that this sum may be somewhat increased by the additional income which will be received from the George-street Markets and the Market Wharf, when the alterations to those properties have been completed.

CITY RATE.

Your committee have not yet been enabled to obtain from the Chairman of Quarter Sessions, any official return of the reduction made by the Court in December last, in the assessment of the properties appealed against, but it is estimated that the amount taken off the original assessment is £28,000. Against this reduction, however, must be placed the assessment on houses erected during the past year, which, making a reasonable allowance for cases of appeal and for houses pulled down, amounts to £17,000, so that the original amount will be lessened by the sum of £11,000 only, leaving the total assessment on the city properties at £753,990. The rate which the Council is compelled to raise, viz., one shilling in the pound for the full year, will yield a sum of £37,690, from which it will be necessary to deduct, say £1500 for rates due upon unoccupied houses and not otherwise collected, leaving the amount of rate to be received £36,190, to which add the amount of probable revenue (schedule C), £29,119, making a total income of £65,309 to meet the proposed expenditure of £64,146 as set forth in Appendix B. Your committee, therefore, recommend the Council to order at once that a city rate of one shilling in the pound upon all assessed properties, be made and levied for the year 1859, the same to be collected in equal half-yearly payments.

WATERING STREETS RATE.

The return hereunto annexed shows the sums expended during the past year in watering the several streets of the city, and opposite to each item the amount of rate, which will be required from each locality to meet the expenses incurred. Your committee recommend that the Council do order the several sums mentioned in this return to be recovered in the usual way.

WORKS EXECUTED IN 1858.

Your committee beg to submit to the Council with this report, an abstract of the receipts and expenditure of the Corporation for the year 1858; and also a return, showing the nature and extent of works carried out in the city during that period. The latter document exhibits the names of the localities where improvements have been made—whether performed by contract or day labour—and the description, quantities, and cost of each separate work.

GEORGE SMITH, chairman.

Town Hall, Sydney, 23rd February, 1859.

On the motion of Alderman THURLOW, the report was ordered to be printed for circulation.

Alderman THURLOW, as the Chairman of the Finance Committee, then moved the salaries of the various officers seriatim, viz., Town Clerk, £475 (being an increase of £25 over 1858); Assistant ditto, £250 (an increase of £25); Treasurer, £175; two Assistants, each £300.

On the City Surveyor's salary being put, Alderman THURLOW moved for the sum of £400, being £25 in excess of that recommended by the Committee, but the original amount, namely £375, was carried. A salary of £250 each for the three District Surveyors was agreed to, after some discussion.

The following items were then agreed to without remark:—Draughtsmen, to the end of March, £75; City Engineer, £800; apprentices (£75 and £50), £125; clerk and accountant, £225; clerk and paymaster, £250; draughtsmen, £300.

In the City Solicitor's salary, the committee had recommended a reduction of £100; but Alderman THURLOW moved for the same salary as he had received for £1858, namely, £350, which, after some opposition, was carried.

On the sum of £400 being moved for as the Health Officer's salary, a good deal of opposition was manifested, as the committee had recommended a reduction of £100.

Alderman NORTHWOOD moved that the reduction, as recommended by the committee, be adopted.

Alderman OATLEY was willing to vote a good salary to the Health Officer, provided he was in a position to enforce the sanitary measures that he might deem requisite. This, however, could not be done under the present Municipal Act, and therefore he (Alderman Oatley) thought that the sum of £100 was sufficient for the duties he could perform.

Alderman WATSON also thought it was sufficient.

Alderman MURPHY coincided with Alderman Oatley that the Corporation had not the power to enforce the measures recommended by their Health Officer; but as soon as they had this power, he (Alderman Murphy) would vote for a salary proportionate to the duties.

Alderman WILLIAMS (I) should vote for the £400. The Corporation employs this gentleman, and no one would deny that the duties he can perform he performs well. This gentleman comes to the Corporation and says, "I cannot enforce the sanitary measures that I know to be necessary, because I have not the power," whereupon the Corporation says "Very well, we'll reduce your salary." A reduction under such circumstances, he considered, would be dishonourable in the extreme.

Alderman SUTHERLAND moved that the sum should be reduced to £300. He believed that those duties which the Health Officer could do were performed efficiently. There was one matter he would especially allude to that came within the province of the Health Officer, and that was the neglect and unhealthy state of the Tank Stream, on which it was necessary to have his report before the Corporation could move in the matter.

Alderman SMITHERS considered that the sudden reduction from £400 to £100 was too great in amount, and exceedingly unadvised. It was well known that this gentleman had rendered himself very obnoxious to many wealthy and influential men by his honest straightforward reports; and he (Alderman Smithers) had no doubt that by this means he had injured himself in his private practice.

Alderman NORTHWOOD did not see that the Health Officer was one pennyworth of good to the Corporation, save to find fault with it. As one placed in charge of the citizens' money, he should feel it his duty to vote for the reduction.

Alderman SPEER thought that the only practical good the Health Officer did was to write a quarterly report. He should, therefore, vote that this salary be reduced to £100—£25 for each report.

The question was then put, and the reduced amount of £100, as recommended by the committee, adopted by a majority of 8 to 4.

The following items then passed:—Inspector of Vehicles, £300; assistant, £37 10s.; Inspector of Nuisances, £250; assistant abolished; Inspector of Slaughter-houses, £300; Clerk of Markets, £220; Messenger of Council, £125; Office-keeper, £26; Inspector of Water Service, £275; Bailiff, £50.

Alderman BROUGHTON moved, "That the sum of £10,000, required for the Markets be raised by debentures, in lieu of being raised by city rates." This on division was negatived.

The Council then resumed its sitting.

It was then moved by Alderman THURLOW, and seconded by Alderman SPEER, "That the report, adopted seriatim in committee, be adopted as a whole.—Carried.

Moved by Alderman THURLOW, seconded by Alderman SPEER, and carried, "That a rate of one shilling in the pound be collected in two equal half-yearly payments in 1859."

The following rates for watering the streets of the city were adopted:—George-street, Campbell's gate to Harris-street, 2d. in the pound; Parramatta-street, Harris-street to city boundary, 5d.; Wynyard-street, 2½d.; Barrack-street, George to York streets, 2½d.; Pitt-street, Hunter to Park streets, 1d; King-street, George to Pitt streets, 2d.; King-street, Pitt to Macquarie streets, 2½d.; Liverpool-street, Elizabeth-street to the South Head Road, 3½d.; William-street, Boomerang to Victoria streets, 3½d.; South Head Road, Liverpool street to city boundary, 3½d.

The Council separated shortly before six o'clock.

PARRAMATTA.

[FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.]

POLICE.—Margaret Behn was on Thursday last committed for trial for entering the dwelling-house of James Redding, in Church-street, and stealing therefrom a watch. Prosecutor stated that during his absence from the front room, of about two or three minutes, his watch was taken from a nail on which it hung, and seeing the prisoner going away, he followed her, and accused her of stealing it, whereupon she took it from her bosom and gave it to him; he then informed the police of the circumstance.—On Saturday, before Messrs. F. O. Darvall, F. Oakes, J. Byrnes, J. Blaxland, and A. L. M'Dougall, seven men were brought up, in custody, on a charge of stealing timber from the Flushcombe Estate, at Prospect. It appears that one of the prisoners, named King, had employed the other six in felling, splitting, and drawing away a quantity of timber, without permission of Mr. Murphy, the trustee for some children, to whom the property belonged, who, upon receiving information of it, proceeded to the place on Tuesday morning and found that forty-four trees had been cut down, and some were ringed and bored with an auger. He asked four of the prisoners who were at work if they knew that they were committing a robbery? They replied that they were not aware of it, but were employed by a person of the name of King. He told them that no one but himself could give them authority. They promised to leave off, and he went in search of King, whom he found on the estate, and asked him what he meant by placing men to work there. He replied that he did not know, but supposed that it was a mistake. Mr. Murphy, after telling him that it could not be so, as he could have received no permission to come upon the premises, requested to be shown where the timber was that had been removed, and was taken by King to the Railway line, and shown about forty sleepers, which he said had been brought from Flushcombe. He begged him not to take out a warrant, as he was willing to pay for the trees. After cautioning him not to remove any more Murphy left, and on Thursday again went to Flushcombe, and seeing some of the prisoners still at work, asked them why they were there after being cautioned; they replied that they had been told by King that it was all right for them to go on again. He told them to knock off, which they did. He found King, and requiring to know what he meant by felling more timber, was told that he might go and do his best. He afterwards saw two others of the prisoners removing a load of sleepers, and therefore caused the whole of them to be apprehended. He valued the trees felled at £23. In cross-examination this witness admitted that he had promised King on the Tuesday that if he paid the value of the trees that evening, and would not cut down any more, he would not prosecute him, but as this was not done he gave them in charge to the police. The bench being of opinion that as the prosecutor had agreed to take a certain sum of money for the timber the charge of felony could not be sustained. The prisoners were therefore released, and the case dismissed.—Byrnes v. Haslem. This case respecting an alleged overcharge made under the new Toll Act, and which had been twice before remanded, in order that the opinion of the Attorney-General might be obtained, was again put off for a week, no reply having yet been received from him.—Thomas Lambert was accused of assaulting Jeremiah Waddick, and admitted the charge to be true, but pleaded great provocation, the complainant having in the street loudly proclaimed him and his family to be guilty of the grossest crimes, and brought a witness to prove that Waddick had used language which was too obscene to be repeated. The case was therefore immediately dismissed.—William Wright summoned Mark Hillas for £5 7s. 6d., balance of wages due. Defendant wished to plead a set-off for rent due, which the Bench refused to admit. Ordered to pay the amount claimed together with 3s. 6d. costs of Court, and 10s. 6d. professional costs. Attorney for plaintiff, Mr. Gould. A woman of the name of Mary Franks had walked from Maher's Creek, a distance of about 35 miles, to answer a charge of using indecent language; but, it not having been used in a public place, the case was dismissed.

ACCIDENT.—George Drury, the son of our chief constable, met with a serious injury a few days since. While moving a stone with his foot from under the wheel of a dray, the horse started, and the wheel crushed his toes beneath it, nearly severing one of them, and rendering amputation necessary. He was immediately conveyed home, and was promptly attended by Dr. Brown. It is satisfactory to state that no danger is apprehended.

SCHOOL OF ARTS.—On Friday evening the weekly discussion took place among the members of the debating society, the subject being "Has climate any influence on national character," which was opened in the negative by Mr. M'Donald; and, after a short debate carried on by Messrs. Griffiths, Allport, Mason, Ennis, and Mackay, was carried in the affirmative. The question named for discussion on next Friday is—"Should executions be public." The lecture on philology, which was to have been given on Wednesday evening, was postponed, owing to the unavoidable absence of the lecturer, the Rev. Mr. Hose.

WINDSOR.

[FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.]

INQUESTS.—On the 15th ultimo, an inquest was held at Freeman's Reach, on the body of a man, name unknown, who was accidentally drowned in the river Hawkesbury, at Freeman's Reach, on the previous day. A verdict was recorded accordingly.—Another inquest took place on the 23rd ultimo, at Portland Head, on the body of James Bell, a labouring man, aged 55 years. It appeared that the deceased, while handling a loaded gun, accidentally shot himself; and the jury returned a verdict to that effect.

LECTURE.—The Reverend Mr. Beazley (Wesleyan) delivered a highly interesting lecture, in the temporary hall of the Windsor School of Arts, on Friday evening last, on the subject of "The Press." The audience was numerous and respectable, and the subject was handled in an able manner, to the extreme satisfaction of all present. Mr. William Walker, presided, and at the conclusion of the lecture, on the motion of Mr. John Cunningham, a vote of thanks was awarded by acclamation to the reverend gentleman. We are happy to state that the Windsor School of Arts is slowly, but steadily, progressing. New members are added weekly—the debating class is conducted with spirit—a library is being formed, already numbering a good supply of works, and we believe other lectures will follow.

PUBLICANS' LICENSES.—At a quarterly meeting of the Bench, under the Publicans' Act, held on Tuesday last, a new license was granted to Mrs. Agnes Shearing, Peninsula House, Windsor; and transfers took place from Christopher Chantler to Alfred Smith, Richmond Road; and William West to Alfred Brown, Wilberforce.

ELECTORAL LISTS.—We perceive that seven objections and five new claims have been filed in respect of the Windsor Electoral Lists.

ROCKHAMPTON.

[FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.]

FEBRUARY 10.—On the 7th instant, a number of gentlemen assembled on premises which had been kindly lent for the occasion, to initiate and adopt measures for the erection of a suitable building for a school-room, to be used as a place of worship in connection with the Church of England; and to consider such other matters relating to the object as might be brought before the notice of the meeting.

A series of resolutions having been previously prepared, and after Divine blessing had been invoked on the important undertaking—the able and worthy chairman, who had been duly moved and seconded to preside over the business of the meeting, regretting that the duties which he had been selected to perform had not fallen into better hands—briefly, but clearly explained the grounds on which the inhabitants of Rockhampton had been called together, and that, as he took a lively interest in the proceedings before them, he would do his utmost to fulfil them to the satisfaction of all. He reminded them of the claims which the moral, educational, and religious interests of the people had upon the attention and patronage of the good, and of the influential, and commended to the favourable consideration of all his fellow-citizens the advantages in joining in aid of the attainment of the objects contemplated. He alluded to the spiritual wants of the district, and of the necessity that existed for a school for the children of the township, and expressed his confidence in the support which he was sure would be given for the advancement of the great and good cause, in which the hearty co-operation of Christian philanthropists so generally secured. He spoke of the resolutions which had been kindly drawn up for the occasion, and which would be submitted to their notice for adoption and support—if, after consideration or discussion, approved; and concluded by calling for the first resolution to be moved—when an appropriate recognition was recorded of the care, kindness, and promptitude of the Bishop of the diocese, which had been evinced by his Lordship's efforts to supply their spiritual wants, immediately on the tidings being spread of the multitudes that had crowded on the banks of the Fitzroy, and on the Canoona gold-fields. Some further remarks were made respecting the important benefits which accrue to society from education at large, as approved by the wise and the good; but especially suggestive of the inestimable blessings consequent upon the religious instruction and the Christian elevation of a people; blessings, invariably resulting from the transforming power and the triumph of the Cross. Nothing, indeed, has been found to tend so much to advance the well-being and prosperity of man as the worship of Almighty God in spirit and in truth, seasonably cared for and duly prized, as being a "rewarder of them that diligently seek him." And with reference to the instruction sought for the rising generation, it is impossible to overrate the hallowing and blessed influences exercised on the hearts and minds of such as attend on, and are taught in Sunday-schools. Thus, to aid in "this token of love"—to promote measures which had for their object the education of the young, and the highest interests of man, is to advance the glory of God, and the salvation of his people. The remaining resolutions were then moved, seconded, and carried, without opposition. The chairman congratulated the meeting on the perfect unanimity that had prevailed throughout the discussion, and hoped and believed that, in conclusion, that they would soon be in a position to commence the contemplated building, and succeed in the object which so many had generously come forward to support.

Subscription lists were opened on the spot, when £120 for clergy stipend, and £80 for schoolhouse, were at once put down. Many subscriptions have since been added.

SOUTH AUSTRALIA.

WE have Adelaide papers to the 1st instant.

THE BUSH FIRE RELIEF FUND.—The committee met on Monday in the Speaker's room, about thirty gentlemen being present. The treasurer announced the gratifying fact that £1636 17s. 9d. had been paid into the bank, and that he had then just received further contributions, increasing the total amount to £1711 14s. 1d. By this time the sum last mentioned has doubtless been augmented, as subscriptions continue to pour in. The list of donors will be immediately published, when it will be seen that as far as the canvass has extended, the response has been most prompt and liberal. In addition to money gifts, large parcels of clothing, blankets, &c., have been made up, both by drapers and private individuals. Mr. Mellor has contributed a reaping-machine, to be disposed of at the discretion of the committee. The Government are also in the field, relieving the most destitute, so that it is hoped no very serious consequences need be now apprehended. The committee took into consideration various letters from Port Elliot and Macclesfield, suggesting the modes of relief, which in the judgment of the writers were best calculated to promote the object in view. It is not intended to distribute the money collected until after the forms of application sent out by the committee have been returned by parties desirous of sharing in the public subscription.

LONDON DOCKS TO FORT BOURKE DIRECT.—The connection by water of the heart of New South Wales with the antipodes of the world is now in course of accomplishment. It is a fact which will, doubtless, be regarded with considerable interest, that the wool brought down the Darling and the Murray on board the Albury has been placed on board the Arabella, for London, without having once been landed since it left the stations. The cargo from Mount Murchison will, consequently, be conveyed by an uninterrupted line of water communication to its destination in the London Docks. In view of this fact, who shall say that the announcement at the head of this paragraph is beyond the bounds of possibility? The celerity with which the last voyage of Captain Cadell was accomplished is illustrated by the fact that he did not receive orders to ship stores for Mount Murchison until the 23rd January. On that day telegraphic instructions from Sydney reached him, and on the 3rd February he had arrived with the stores at their destination. This circumstance also proves the great value which telegraphic communication is likely to be in connection with the navigation of our rivers.

LEICHHARDT AND THE DESERT.

To the Editor of the Sydney Morning Herald.

SIR,—I herewith forward to you a further communication from the Government, on the subject of my application for another expedition into the interior.

As I have now appealed to the colonial and Imperial authorities, as well as to the Royal Geographical Society, and, through your columns, to the public of Australia; and as the former applications have been without success, the only hope of it now remains in the action of the latter, and I am glad to find that the interest excited in this colony is not extinct, as I infer from an article in this morning's Herald.

W. B. CLARKE.

"Colonial Secretary's Office,
"Sydney, 17th February, 1859.

"Reverend Sir,—I am directed to forward herewith, for your information, a copy of a despatch from the Right Honorable the Principal Secretary of State for the colonies, acknowledging the receipt and replying to a communication from you, under date the 9th September last, on the subject of despatching another expedition to ascertain the fate of Leichhardt's expedition, &c.

"I have the honour to be, Reverend Sir,
"Your most obedient servant,
"W. ELYARD.

"The Rev. W. B. Clarke, St. Leonard's."

"Downing-street, 6th December, 1858.

"Sir,—I have received a letter from the Rev. W. B. Clarke, dated the Parsonage, St. Leonard's, New South Wales, 9th September last, pointing out the uncertainty which, in his opinion, still attaches to the fate of Leichhardt's Expedition in 1848, and suggesting that a new expedition should be organised in order to clear up that point, and also with a view to the exploration of the districts indicated in a printed paper which accompanies his letter, and which he states to be an abridgement of two communications previously addressed by him to the editor of the Sydney Morning Herald, setting forth his views in regard to the probable route taken by Leichhardt and his party.

"I have to request that you will thank Mr. Clarke for communicating such views as have occurred to him, but will state to him that her Majesty's Government do not feel that there are sufficient grounds to give directions for a fresh expedition for the desired object.

"I have, &c.,
"(Signed) E. B. LYTTON.

"Governor Sir W. Denison, K.C.B., &c., &c., &c., New South Wales."

To the Editor of the Sydney Morning Herald.

DEAR SIR,—I beg to forward the enclosed letter received this morning from Captain Cadell, believing that its publication would interest a large number of your subscribers. Should you agree with me, I shall feel obliged by your giving it space in your columns.

In illustration of the feeling which exists towards Captain Cadell amongst the squatters on the Darling, permit me also to add a short extract from a letter I have received written by a stockholder on that river, who has large stations also on the Murrumbidgee and Edward Rivers. He writes:—

Captain Cadell has just returned from his trip up the Darling in the steamer Albury. He went up as far as the Messrs. Jamiesons' (Mount Murchison), which is thirty miles above my station. He took up all my supplies and landed them safe at the station. I hope the Government will now take some steps to recompense him for the way he has acted in developing the resources of this part of the colony. No man could have done more, and, as yet, he has got nothing. You must know he has had a serious pecuniary loss in this navigation company, and has little else to depend upon but his own exertions. I hope all of you down in Sydney will do your best to bring his name before those who have influence with the Government. I could not explain to you the care and anxiety he has gone through in carrying out this great work.

I remain, dear Sir, faithfully yours,
R. PEEL RAYMOND.

Lyons'-buildings, George-street, Sydney, March 7.

Adelaide, 23rd February, 1859.

My dear Sir,—You will have doubtless learnt through the public Press that I succeeded in getting up the Darling as far as Mount Murchison. My reception from the settlers was everything that I could desire, and I will use my best endeavours to work that river with steamers, as well as the Murray and the Murrumbidgee.

It may be useful for overlanders to know that I have established a small depot at Menindee, where they can be supplied with rations on their way down the Darling. I have also a large store at the Darling junction, where supplies can be obtained in any quantity. But the most economical method of obtaining supplies by real bona fide settlers, is to have them sent up from this city to the depot at the junction, where, if landed by my steamers, they will be stored free of charge, until a boat or dray takes them up to the station.

I should feel much obliged by your mentioning the name of my establishment here to any of your friends that may want stores forwarded. They may rely on getting the best articles that are to be obtained, at the market price. N. Chadwick is one of my firmest friends and best supporters on the rivers.

If I can at any be of any service, or furnish you with any information pray command my services.

My address is simply Adelaide.

Believe me, very truly yours,
THOMAS CADELL.

R. Peel Raymond, Esq., Sydney.

To the Editor of the Sydney Morning Herald.

SIR,—The report of the inquest held on the body of the late Mr. Percival Hindmarsh, brings to mind a subject which has often occurred to me.

The department in which the deceased gentleman was engaged is one of the most important in the Customs, and one requiring considerable care and attention, I allude to the work assigned to the landing waiters, which consists (beside other duties) of gauging spirits, &c., and weighing all, or nearly all the dutiable goods arriving in the port; both these operations can only be properly and effectually carried out where suitable accommodation is provided, the want of which on our principal landing wharves have long been felt. Not only are the officers employed, subject to serious inconvenience from exposure day by day to the sun, and become (as shewn by the evidence on the inquest) incapacitated for the performance of their duties, unless refreshed by an occasional nobbler, or by retirement to their boxes (or, what would be a better term, kennels, for such miserable places deserve no better name), but our merchants and traders are losers to some extent, from inaccuracy in the gauging caused by the expansion of the liquids from the like exposure.

Pray, Sir, for the sake of common humanity, urge upon the authorities, through the medium of your journal, the necessity of providing proper accommodation for carrying on an important branch of the public service, and so prevent the possibility of the officers suffering from the effects of a coup de soleil.

I am, Sir, your obedient servant,
AUSTRALIA.

MR. SHERIDAN MOORE'S LECTURE.—Yesterday evening an Oration was delivered at the School of Arts by Mr. Sheridan Moore, on the "Wits and Humourists of the Age." The audience was both large and select, and appeared to derive considerable amusement from the able manner in which the subject was handled by the lecturer. After a few prefatory remarks, Mr. Moore proceeded to describe the difference between wit and humour; the former being defined as that exercise of the mind which discovers a similarity between ideas commonly considered to be dissimilar, and the latter as the mere expression of the ludicrous; one appealing to the intellect, and the other more commonly to the affections. In a rapid and comprehensive glance at some portions of ancient literature, in connection with the topic under discussion; allusion was then made to the humour displayed by writers of antiquity, from Homer, the blind old father of poetry, to Horace. In both of these two writers—separated as they were by so long an interval—there was humour if there was not wit. Homer frequently introduced queer characters, whose peculiarities were so felicitously touched off that they provoked laughter—Thersites, the hideous, foul-mouthed, railing babbler, for instance, in the Iliad, and the miserable Polyphemus in the Odyssey, and elsewhere, in another poem attributed to Homer, and which, as such, has come down to modern times. Even Virgil in one of his Eclogues condescends to be humourous; and the journey to Brundusium, and incessant annoyance of a curious impertinent, or bore, are well known monuments of the wit and humour of satirical Horace. From these early instances the lecturer traced the progress of this species of development in literature, through the middle ages down to later times. He divided English literature into three periods; the Elizabethan period, the Gloriana period—that shortly before and during the reign of Queen Anne—the Georgian period, and, lastly, the Victorian period—commencing rather at the birth than with the reign of that distinguished sovereign from whom it derives its name. Instances were adduced under the above classification. In the Elizabethan period,—Shakespeare, Ben Johnson, and Raleigh, are most prominently noticed. In proof of the poetic genius of Sir Walter, "The Soul's Errand" was recited, and received, as a genuine burst of poetry, with much applause. After passing briefly over the two succeeding periods, the Victorian period was then very successfully treated of, the greatest wits of the age being spoken of as Theodore Hook, Sydney Smith, and Thomas Moore. Thomas Harris Barham—more commonly known as "Thomas Ingoldsby"—was also mentioned as having a great influence in the comic literature of the present day, and "The Jackdaw of Rheims" was recited to show the astonishing manner in which this author surmounted all the ordinary difficulties of versification. The recital of this veracious legend was hailed with shouts of laughter. The riot and humour of Thackeray, Dickens, Jerrold, and Disraeli were then respectively dwelt upon, and contrasted. The first author, being a realist, had, as it appeared, but few imitators; whilst Dickens, a mere idealist, had quite a school of followers; Albert Smith, Charles Lever, Henry Cockton, and many others. Currer Bell (C. Bronte) he thought more similar to the style of Douglass Jerrold than any other, and passed a high encomium upon the talent of that gifted writer, now deceased. Mr. Moore concluded his extempore address by several poetical examples of wit, quoting two pieces from the pen of Thomas Hood, and also Thackeray's inimitable ballad of "Peg of Limavady," which was hailed with shouts of laughter. Mr. Moore was applauded throughout his lecture, which lasted for about an hour and a half.

THE BAND of the 12th Regiment will perform a selection of music, at 4 p.m. this afternoon, in the Botanic Gardens. Programme:—Overture, "Lara," Callen; selection, "La Dame Blanche," Boieldieu; waltz, "Reussen Lieder," Gungl; cavatina, "Tutto è sciolto," Bellini; quadrille, "England," D'Albert; galop, "Friedens Jubel," Kükner; "God save the Queen."

LICENSING BUSINESS.—The magistrates will assemble at noon to-day, for the purpose of finishing the quarterly meeting under the Publicans' Licensing Act, and will afterwards proceed to hold a quarterly meeting for the consideration of applications for hawkers' and pedlars' licenses. Recognizances will be taken to-day.

MR. W. C. SCHMITT.—The musical friends of this gentleman will regret to hear he has been compelled, from ill health, to try a change of climate, and leaves for Auckland in the Bredalbane to-day. It was intended to have given him a complimentary concert, but the necessity for his leaving precluded any chance of this being accomplished in time.

WESLEYAN MISSIONS.—The anniversary public meeting of the Balmain Auxiliary to the Wesleyan Missionary Society, was held last night in the Balmain Wesleyan Chapel. The chair was occupied by James Barker, Esq. The Rev. J. G. Millard read a brief report of the recent operations of the Society, referring prominently to the missionary labours in the South Sea Islands and amongst the Chinese immigrants in this colony and Victoria. After which, forcible and interesting addresses were delivered by the Revs. R. Mansfield, J. Fawcett, W. Hessel, and R. Amos, from Tongataboo, and also by J. W. Lawson, Esq., and Captain Tinley. A collection was made at the close of the meeting, which, with that at the anniversary sermons on Sunday, amounted to £11 1s.; from other sources the sum of £27 has been received, making up the proceeds of the auxiliary for the year £38, a large increase on last year.

CRICKET.—In the Domain, on Saturday, a match was played between the Second Eleven of the Alberts and the Warwick Club, which seemed to have been an occasion of considerable interest, inasmuch as the latter gentlemen have, it is believed, been hitherto invariably victorious, while the former have the advantage of practising in company with many cricketers in the fore rank, and thus were called upon to sustain a large part of the credit of their corps. In the two first innings the Warwicks had the superiority, which was, perhaps, mainly attributable to the close bowling of Messrs. Cleeve and Terry, which allowed of few opportunities of getting the ball a-field; but notwithstanding there was little variation in the style of bowling. The Second Alberts made a good score for their second innings. The game was closed on Saturday at nightfall, and as it then stood the Alberts had made 113 runs, against which the Warwicks had scored 60, and had nine wickets to go down in their second innings. It is understood that, as yet, no time has been appointed for the completion of the match.

LAND LEAGUE.—The New South Wales Land League held a meeting last evening, at the Temperance Hall, Francis-street, Woolloomooloo, for the purpose of electing office-bearers for the ensuing year. Mr. W. Lucas was called to the chair. The minutes of the previous meeting having been read over, it was found that candidates had already been duly nominated, and the present meeting were therefore called upon to elect. Mr. John Black, J.P., was chosen president; and the following gentlemen as Vice-Presidents:—Alderman Sutherland, Mr. J. Pemell (also Treasurer), Mr. J. Lucas, J.P., and Mr. R. Stewart. The secretaries, who were elected by ballot, were Mr. C. G. Reid and Mr. W. Cox. The undermentioned were chosen as members of the committee:—Messrs. Lodge, Melville, Reid, Wiley (senior), Gleadall, Morrison, Carlyle, A. Allen, Rhodes, W. B. Allen, Lucas, Lynn, M'Phail, Douglass, White, Cox, and Riley. Some consideration was given to the principles with which the league should enter upon its next campaign, and Mr. Reid read a draft of the conditions which the League sought to have embodied in a land measure; but it was thought that these were not sufficiently simple, nor the principles so distinct as was desirable. As it was advocated on all sides that the agitation should now be carried forward with fresh vigour, various plans of operation were canvassed, and it was determined that prior to a greater demonstration a meeting should be held at Redfern, in which locality considerable sympathy for the cause had been manifested, and Mr. Reid was instructed to draw up an explicit statement of the League's principles and objects for laying before the public on that occasion

THE LATE DRAY ACCIDENT.—Writing on the 2nd instant, our Dungog correspondent says:—The youngest child of the late John Sawyer, although given up by Drs. Ashenheim and Street, at its father's inquest on Friday last, is up to the time we write still living, although mortification will, in all probability, soon set in, and complete its deadly work. The prolonged existence of the ill-fated sufferer makes it evident that the child was not injured further than the shattered limb, and that had amputation been at once decided upon there is reason to suppose from the strength of the child's constitution, that its life might have been spared. The little sufferer is still at Mrs. Abbott's, to whose house it was removed after the accident. I am not surprised that doctors are reluctant to operate, for, in this colony, patients generally sink under their instruments, but it would be well for the public if practitioners had more confidence in that important branch of their profession. In alluding to surgery, it may be remembered that the late Mr. Liston, of Edinburgh, hardly ever failed in cases of amputation because he had great nerve, and, having confidence in himself, never hesitated to remove a limb, which he could do in one minute without the usual parade of preparation and the presence of the faculty. The deceased man has been (20) twenty years in this district. He was of an obliging and manly disposition, and has, on various occasions, risked his life when he saw his neighbour's in danger. His remains were followed to the burial ground at Aulcy's Flat, on Saturday last, by about 150 mourners, the Rev. Mr. Dodd, of the Episcopal Church, officiating.

CORONER'S INQUEST.—An enquiry was instituted yesterday by the City Coroner respecting the death of a woman name unknown, when the following facts were elicited:—At about half-past one o'clock on the morning of Sunday last, constable Carrol, while on his beat, heard a noise in the University paddock, opposite the omnibus stand at the Glebe; and on listening, found the noise proceeded from two men and a woman in the paddock, near the pond. On observing them closely, he saw reason to believe that the men were taking improper liberties with the woman, and on walking up to them found this to be the case. He at once took one of the men, named Thomas Kenny, alias Shaughnessy, into custody; the other made off. Having taken the man Kenny to the station-house he returned for the woman, whom he found drowned in the pond, and was then being dragged out by a boy, while a number of persons were collected round. She was taken to the dead-house at the Benevolent Asylum, where the body was viewed by the jury yesterday. Another man, named James Butler, supposed to be the other man engaged in the assault, was apprehended yesterday by inspector Quirk. Dr. Gilhoolly, the resident surgeon at the Benevolent Asylum, made a post mortem examination of the body, and gave the result at the inquest yesterday. Constable Carroll, inspector Quirk, and four other persons were examined, when further proceedings were adjourned till Wednesday morning next, in order that the police may have time to collect further information.

THE RAILWAY.—The total receipts for traffic on the Great Southern Railway for the week ending 5th instant amounted to £993 4s. 10d., and the total number of passengers carried 6187.

FOSTERTON, 30TH FEBRUARY.—A correspondent writes:—The cut at the Big Hill.—This important piece of work is now so far advanced, that we are enabled to say that it is creditable to the Dungog Road Committee, and particularly so to the contractors, Mr. John Tickle and Son, and who are performing the work in a most satisfactory manner. There is no such cutting or such an excellent sideling, as the navvies call it, on this side of Maitland. The new cut is as broad and level as a railway. It gives us pleasure to write in these terms of the committee and contractor, and to add that, if the colony had a few such men as Mr. John Tickle in each district, we should soon have excellent roads.

THUNDER STORM.—We were visited by a heavy thunder storm on Wednesday last. It had been threatening for some time previous, and about a quarter to three o'clock in the afternoon we experienced the full weight of it, accompanied with heavy hail and rain, as thick almost as we ever remember to have seen it, the streets also being literally flooded. The lightning descended from a direction beyond Mr. Williams' blacksmith's shop, in Sloane-street, and struck the telegraph wire. It passed along the copper wire connecting the main lines, entered the office, and fused the wire. A portion of the electric current here found the ground, having struck the fire-place, while another portion passed out at the door, through the coffee-room, and thence made its escape. One person said it struck the hall lamp, but as this was not injured, it is thought that he must have been mistaken. The noise of the explosion was terrific. Mrs. Russell, who lives adjoining, describes the lightning as having struck her, and almost deprived her of sensation. She, however, received no injury beyond the fright, and being incapacitated for work during the day.—A butcher, in the employ of Mr. James Thompson, was about the same time passing beneath the telegraph wire, in the vicinity of Towrang, when the horse received a shock which caused him to rear and upset both cart and man, who was slightly stunned, but fortunately otherwise uninjured. The horse was not seriously hurt. The storm did not, however, continue for any length of time, and in the evening the atmosphere was quite clear without a passing cloud. The storm is said to have raged equally down the road to Sydney. It is supposed to have injured the telegraph line between Yass and Albury, probably by knocking down the posts, as communication could be obtained beyond the former place only with great difficulty afterwards, and on the following morning not at all. Inspectors were dispatched, both from Goulburn and Albury, to ascertain and rectify whatever might be found amiss. On Friday one or two short messages were got through with some difficulty from here to Albury. The circuit was soon after again rendered incomplete.—Goulburn Herald.

THE BATHURST DRILLING AND SOWING MACHINE.—It has occasionally been remarked that the settlers on this side of the Blue Mountains are very slow to adopt improvements for facilitating agricultural operations, which accordingly are conducted in a very primitive manner. There is too much truth, it is to be feared, in this assertion; and there is little room to hope for any material change for the better, at least for a considerable time to come, for already more grain can be produced than is required for consumption in the district, and there is no outlet for a surplus. But, how much it may be to the farmer's interest to cultivate cheaper than he now does is a question he may not be disinclined to consider. Desirous of practising economy, and doing something to help Australia to advance, our fellow-townsman, Mr. S. Sweetman, informs us that, about twelve or eighteen months ago, he invented a machine for saving time and labour in sowing corn. He had heard of some machines being invented in America for this purpose, but had never had the privilege of inspecting one. Hence he is fairly entitled to the merit of originality. We have not seen Mr. Sweetman's machine, but the description we have received of it is sufficient for our present purpose. It appears, then, that as it moves along, the machine drills the ground, drops the seed into the holes, and covers them up at once. The first experiment with it was made last year, when it was found to answer admirably—an acre of ground having then been planted in the short space of one hour. It has been tried again this year, and with like satisfactory results. An expert man, we are informed, would be occupied an entire day in planting half-an-acre of ground—a fact which speaks volumes in favour of the invention.—Bathurst Times.

ON the evening of Thursday last, the new Baptist chapel of the Rev. Isaac New, of Melbourne, was opened by a public tea meeting, and a series of addresses by several ministers of various denominations. About five hundred persons sat down to tea. The interior of the chapel is very handsomely decorated, and is sufficiently commodious to accommodate 750 persons. The seats are arranged in the form of an amphitheatre; in fact, the entire arrangements of the chapel reflect great credit upon the architect, and all those concerned in its erection.—Melbourne Herald.

A FAMILY OF SNAKES.—A few days ago a lad named James Toole killed a snake, about five feet long, at Kilwarri, and on opening it found thirty-eight young ones, some of which were nine or ten inches long BURRENDONG.—In consequence of the attractions of Merendee, Burrendong (always a fluctuating diggings,) is once more nearly deserted; in fact, in walking from the Macquarie to the diggings on the Reef (so called) you will not see more than two or three strange parties of diggers—almost the only miners remaining at Spring Creek or Burrendong are those possessed of capital, and engaged upon the world-renowned reef. Several of the storekeepers here are making preparations to leave for Merendee, as that place appears likely to have a large population in a short time. It is an extraordinary fact, that although auriferous quartz abounds at Burrendong, no speculative individual or company has, as yet, taken any steps towards the erection of crushing apparatus, whilst far less profitable reefs have been worked in other parts of the colony and have paid well. Several of the parties on the reef are making a little, but I have no extraordinary yields to record.—Bathurst Free Press.

FIRES.—On Thursday morning, at three o'clock, small building used as a storehouse by Mr. Peter Stewart, of the Dog and Style, was destroyed by fire. It is not known how the fire originated, but it is attributed to the spontaneous ignition of some material in the place. The neighbours quickly assembled, and through their efforts the fire was happily prevented from spreading.—The premises of Mr. Gould, of Kilwairi, were totally destroyed by fire last week. The fire broke out at a time when assistance could not be procured, the nearest house being more than a mile distant, and no person about the premises except the infirm and sickly couple who resided there. The fiery elements raged for about two hours, when nothing remained but a heap of mouldering ruins of one of the finest houses in the Kilwairi district. The house (a substantial brick building) alone cost £1800; and we fear the loss will be heavy, as we are not aware the premises were insured.—Braidwood Daily News.

THE CANOBLAS COPPER MINE.—Considerable excitement has been produced by the announcement that this copper mine, which, it will be in the recollection of our readers, has already attracted considerable notice under the auspices of Messrs. Rodd and Samuel, has proved highly remunerative to the labourers who are employed upon it, working on a system of tribute. It appears that a lode has been discovered, composed of the richest red oxide, with portions of malleable or native copper and some sulphurate. In fact, Nature has been most lavish in the formation of this most extraordinary deposit, and it has been visited by many persons, who are practical men, and have visited some of the richest mines in various parts of the world, and they have pronounced most favourably upon its probable results. The lod is about 70 feet wide, crossing one of the deep gullies on the southern side of the Canoblas Mountain. As yet very few persons are employed upon it, but they, in sinking a mere pit, have raised about 250 tons of ore, which will apparently produce at least from thirty to forty tons per cent. of copper, valued at from £7000 to £8000. The accuracy of this statement may be relied upon and little doubt can exist that so remarkable a discovery will exert a most important influence on the interests of this district, affording, as it does, one more potent argument in favour of a railway between thi town and the metropolis. We have already inspected a specimen of the virgin copper from this mine which completely bears out the report we have given above.—Bathurst Free Press.

AN UNWELCOME MORNING CALL.—On Tuesday last, Mrs. William Richardson, of the Evans' Plains Hotel, narrowly escaped serious, if not fatal, injury, from a very unwelcome visitant, which presented itself at the threshold of the house in the shape of a black snake, about four feet long. It appears that Mrs. Richardson was on the point of going forth from the house, and was crossing the very spot where the reptile lay, when her steps were providentially arrested by a bystander, who descried the creature, and immediately warned Mrs. Richasdson of its presence, an intervention which was the more fortunate as Mrs. Richardson was accompanied by her eldest child, who would thus have been exposed to a like peril. Probably owing to the intensely hot weather which has prevailed lately, a large number of these reptiles have made their appearance in this locality during the last few weeks.—Bathurst Free Press.

MERENDEE.—We learn from a private correspondent that a large proportion of the mining population have left Burrendong, Mookerawa and Stoney Creeks for Merendee during the last fortnight, attracted by the reports which have reached those diggings relative to the superior richness of this new candidate for public favour. We are also informed that arrangements have been made by which letters addressed to parties located on the Merendee gold-field will be forwarded to them once a-week from the Ironbark, and the same conveyance will also bring letters back for postage at that place.—Bathurst Free Press.

ANOTHER MAGNIFICENT NUGGET.—Another splendid nugget, weighing 121 ozs. 2 dwts., has been found by four Germans at Louisa, in the vicinity of the ever-memorable spot where Dr. Carr's "hundredweight nugget" was found, and which first gave to Louisa Creek a world-wide celebrity. This magnificent nugget—not Dr. Carr's, remember—was discovered on Friday last, three feet only beneath the surface of the ground, and was purchased by Mr. Shaw, gold buyer for the Bank of New South Wales, for £385. Mr. Bonnor, to whose kindness we are indebted for these particulars, inspected the nugget at Louisa, shortly after it had been disposed of by the lucky finders, and regrets that he missed the opportunity of purchasing it himself. The same party that found the nugget likewise obtained about five ounces of gold the same day by the usual process of washing, thus making their day's work amount to £100 per man.—Bathurst Times.

THE LATE FIRE.—The committee who tendered their services to obtain funds to alleviate the distress of the unfortunate sufferers by the late calamitous fire at North Melbourne, met on Wednesday at two o'clock, in the Town Hall. The remaining portion of the town was divided into districts, and persons solicited to undertake to canvass from house to house. The amount paid in previously was about £120. At the above meeting Messrs. Cumming and Stitt handed in £51 13s. 6d.; Messrs. Long and Dickson, £6 15s. 6d.; and Messrs. W. Fairfax and A. Ferguson, £38; total, £105 9s. The full amount already in hand is £225 9s., but only a small portion of Melbourne has as yet been traversed.—Argus of Thursday.

STOCK CIRCULAR.

MR. THOMAS DAWSON reports: Fat Cattle—a fair supply, maintaining former prices. Fat Sheep still scarce, and realising extreme prices—say ewes, 16s; wethers, 20s to 23s, with an upward tendency. Store Cattle—large orders have come to hand—good brands easy of sale at former quotations: say mixed equal proportions, 40s to 45s; all bullocks, 60s to 65s; for inferior stock, prices nominal

STORE SHEEP are in demand, but in consequence of the high prices held out for by the holders are difficult of sale. Prices rule according to quality and locality.

HORSES.—The market has been but indifferently supplied throughout the week. Good horses broken or unbroken fit for harness, will meet with ready sale at remunerative prices, but weedy and light animals are difficult of sale.

MERCANTILE AND MONEY ARTICLE.

Monday Evening.

THE monthly general meeting of the members of the Sydney Chamber of Commerce was held this day, at half-past 3 o'clock. Mr. J. S. Willis presided. Messrs. J. R. Street, J. Napier, W. B. Walker, C. C. Durham, and A. S. Leathes were severally ballotted for and elected members of the Chamber. Mr. Dickson's motion respecting the Pilotage Act was partially discussed, and the debate was adjourned, on the motion of Mr. Druery, to this day fortnight. The Chairman (Mr. Willis), Deputy-Chairman (Mr. A. Stuart) announced their resignation, in consequence of doubts having been expressed as to the validity of their election. Mr. A. Campbell also resigned his office of member of the committee, on the ground that the election had been in opposition to the new rules. A report of the proceedings will be found in another part of our columns.

Mr. R. P. Richardson sold, to-day, by auction, 30 shares in the Australian Gas-Light Company, at £11 17s. 6d. per share.

We have papers from Tasmania to the 28th ultimo. The Hobart Town Mercury of that date says:—

No particular animation is manifest in any description of goods, business continuing very quiet. Some further shipments of salt have been made to Melbourne, and a large quantity of hops has been imported hither from that market. The Aurora, Australia, to sail for London on Monday, takes 1508 bales of wool and upwards of 40 tuns of oil.

Grain, &c.—Supplies come in very sparingly and sales consequently have been few during the week. Wheat fully maintains recent prices notwithstanding a gradual decline in the neighbouring colonies, and 7s. 9d. to 8s. continue the market figures. There is no particular enquiry for oats, but two or three sales have been effected at 4s. and 4s. 6d. for new oats. Cape barley is quoted at 4s. 3d. to 4s. 6d. Potatoes are still quoted at £5 to £6 per ton, but scarcely any have yet come into the market.

Flour.—There is no inquiry for export, but the local demand is good. Prices show much steadiness, fine flour still selling at £18 to £19 10s per ton according to quantity. Bran is quoted at 1s 6d to 1s 8d per bushel.

Eastern Produce.—The usual amount of business has been doing for local requirements, but nothing further. Teas are quiet, and have undergone no variation in value; first-class congous realise from £7 10s to £7 15s; fine hysonskins are exceedingly scarce and rather higher rates have been offered. Coffees are not much in request at former quotations. The market is well supplied with sugar, notwithstanding recent shipments; prices have experienced no change, Mauritius sugars being still quoted at the following figures:—ration, £28 to £30 per ton; counter, £31 to £34; fine yellow, £35 to £40; crystals, £45 to £48.

Liquids.—The spirit market is remarkably dull. Brandy changes hands with considerable difficulty, even in small quantities. Martell's new brandy has sold at 10s to 10s 6d, but the old fetches a much higher figure. Rum commands a moderate sale at former rates, the 10 per cent. o.p. fetches 3s 6d to 3s 9d, and the 30 per cent. o.p. 4s 6d to 4s 9d. Bottled beers are quiet, and in bulk ale, but little is doing at present.

Timber.—There is no improvement to notice, and prices continue stationary.

Wool.—Full prices have been given the last two or three days, but buyers do not come forward very readily. Sales have been made at the following figures; Superior flock, pressed, 1s 8d to 1s 9d; ditto loose, 1s 6d to 1s 8d; inferior to average, pressed, 1s 4d to 1s 7d; skin, 1s 3d to 1s 4d; grease 9d to 10d.

The Bexley Estate.
The attention of capitalists, Farmers, Gardeners, Builders, and of all those who desire at once a most secure and peculiarly advantageous investment is specially solicited.
MESSRS. W. DEAN and CO. have been favoured with instructions peremptorily to sell by public auction, at their Warehouse, Pitt and O'Connell streets, on an early day, of which due notice will be given,
A most important and valuable portion of the above estate, which is situated about six miles from the Sydney Post Office, and two miles from Cook's River.
It is presumed that such an eligible investment has very seldom presented itself in any of these colonies. Being so well known, it is hardly necessary to state that this property enjoys a pre-eminence above all other of our suburban sites for acknowledged salubrity; and the admired magnificence of the whole picturesque locality, commanding perhaps by far the finest prospect which ever this extensive region, so noted for its fine views, can possibly furnish. The prospect combines the delightful expanse of the wide ocean, including the Botany Heads, together with an extensive horizon, encircled on all sides by a boundless range of bold woodland.
The portion submitted to public competition amounts to 1100 acres, in which many unusual advantages are presented. A crystal stream furnishing a supply of never-failing water, which, scientifically applied for the purposes of artificial irrigation, might at a small cost, be made of incalculable benefit to the purchasers of this property, particularly in this climate, where destructive drought so often prevails. By means of a Government road, 3 chains wide, passing through the land, a most valuable intercommunication and important traffic is at once established with the Illawarra district—a locality which now equals in progress any of our most favoured outlying settlements. The beneficial results arising from this advantage may at once be estimated from the peculiar fact that, on the Bexley Estate, there are already several most flourishing farms and market gardens, in the highest state of cultivation, with an excellent hotel, and a well-attended Wesleyan Church.
At the same time its very proximity to Sydney must inevitably add an increasing yearly value to the land, drawing it more closely to the metropolis, as a most inviting spot for superior villas, and picturesque suburban retreats for health, luxury, and relaxation. It is only needful to state the corroborative fact of the extraordinary rise in value of this delightful situation, that one of the resident proprietors, Mr. Isaac Parkes, occupying an allotment of 26 acres, which he purchased for £16 per acre, has very recently refused £35 per acre for the same, an unprecedented rise has been the enormous rise in value, by extending to this excellent land the industrial benefits of careful cultivation and general improvement.
The land will be properly surveyed and laid out in allotments of various sizes, suitable for building sites, villas, market gardens, small farms, and such other purposes as may be considered to be adapted to a locality, all of which may as soon be very reasonably expected to form town parks to this rapidly progressing capital of the Southern hemisphere.
It is besides quite obvious that for agricultural purposes the expense of clearing the land would more than be defrayed by the easy convenience of removing the timber to Sydney for fuel, &c.
The Auctioneers could, with much propriety, say more relative to this important property, for the present however they deem further comment superfluous.
Title unexceptionable.
For terms and further particulars apply to the Auctioneers, Pitt and O'Connell streets, Sydney.

☞ These country properties comprise in themselves one of the RICHEST GOLD DISTRICTS in the colony. Already three distinct diggings have been opened up upon them, and are now in full operation, viz., the HONEYSUCKLE, the DEEP CREEK, and the MAJOR'S CREEK.
—The surrounding country is also being extensively worked, and with great success, there being at least 5000 diggers located in one spot immediately opposite Lot 2 on Jembaicumbene Creek—thus giving ample proof that the neighbourhood abounds in gold, and requires only additional population to develop its vast mineral resources. The attention of capitalists and neighbouring proprietors is especially requested, as the properties are really in the market with a bona fide intention of sale, the trustees having decided to wind up the estate.
Plans on view at the Rooms, Pitt-street, where every information can be obtained.

EDGECLIFFE ROAD, POINT PIPER ESTATE.

CHOICE BLOCK OF LAND.

MORT and CO. have received instructions to sell by public auction, at the Rooms, Pitt-street, at 11 o'clock, on THURSDAY, 10th March,
The residue of the Lease for 99 years, from 1st January, 1857, of that really beautiful block of Land, containing nearly 4 ACRES, and having a frontage of about 760 FEET to the EDGECLIFFE ROAD.
☞ Particular attention is directed to this block of land which is divided from Miss Moore's Mansion by a street 66 FEET wide, and is immediately opposite the property of Mr. Lennon, and in the vicinity of the newly erected residences of Messrs. Campbell, Thompson, and Laidley, and has the great advantage of being so situated that no buildings can hereafter be erected to shut out the view; the land on the opposite side of the Edgecliffe Road sloping down to the well-known Double Bay Market Gardens, now under cultivation; it has also the advantage of frontages to roads on all sides of 66 feet wide, thus making the property WHOLE IN ITSELF. On one side it is divided from Miss Moore's by Wellington-street, on another from Messrs. FREEMAN, OATLEY, and others, by Nelson-street; and on the other sides by the Edgecliffe Road, to which it has a frontage of 760 feet, more or less—and when this road is opened for vehicles from DARLING POINT to WAVERLEY, which will shortly be the case, property in this already very fashionable neighbourhood will have an immense value imparted to it; and which must inevitably take place, as land about Darling and Potts' Points has been so cut up and subdivided into small lots, that the seclusion of the gentry is irrecoverably disturbed, and there is no other part of Sydney that offers such inducements of retirement and health, with the advantage of being within half-an-hour's ride of the city, as property in the south-eastern direction.
THE VIEW IS NOT SURPASSED ON THE WHOLE OF THE POINT PIPER ESTATE, being very extensive; comprehending the whole of the City, the Harbour, Heads, Waverley, Paddington, North Shore, and, in the distance, THE SOUTH PACIFIC OCEAN and BLUE MOUNTAINS.
Those in search of a really choice block of land in this delightful neighbourhood will do well to inspect this property.
The ground rent for the whole block is only £60 per annum.
Title, unexceptionable. Terms, liberal.
Plan to be seen, and further particulars may be obtained, at the Rooms, Pitt-street.

TARAMPA is beyond doubt one of the most extensive and best situated runs in this favourite district, and, for its FATTENING PROPERTIES, STANDS PRE-EMINENT.
It is watered by the River Brisbane (the finest stream in the Northern districts), by Lockyer's Creek, large lagoons, and never-failing water courses. The country consists of undulating ridges, interspersed with extensive flats and plains, and sheep can be run in FLOCKS OF ALMOST ANY NUMBER.
Splendid water for sheep washing. The Tarampa wool has always ranked among the best Moreton Bay brands.
The IMPROVEMENTS comprise everything requisite for carrying on the station with economy.

MORT and CO. feel that the properties are so well known in New South Wales, that comment of any kind is unnecessary. For the benefit of distant buyers, however, they would add that they are, in the fullest sense, first-class pastoral properties, and well worthy the attention of capitalists seeking investment.
